

SOCIETY

Well of all the corps dances, how about the one last Saturday night? If you missed it just take an hour off and let someone tell you what all you missed. Without a doubt the last dance was the best so far this year. We have been unable to decide whether it was due to the game Friday, the unusual number of visiting girls or just what, but nevertheless everyone had a "large evening."

As usual the music was furnished by Aggieland and you know it is needless to say anymore. We all enjoyed the music from the orchestra and some of us that heard the many, many compliments that were paid Aggieland by our visitors enjoyed it even more.

There were no favors, not even programs for it does not take that to make a corps dance good, and surely not the last one. Even our social secretary who is responsible for the dance, had an enjoyable evening. Someone said that there was a very pretty reason from State, but anyway we all enjoyed it alike.

There were many visitors at the dance, which of course helped to make it the success that it was. Mr. Archie Wayman, who is now studying law at T. C. U., his mother and father and his two sisters, Misses Frances and Elizabeth Wayman, were present for the dance.

Miss "Punch" Sloan and Miss "Sandy" Woodward from Taylor arrived on the campus Friday and also attended the dance. Miss Woodward was the guest of "Dime" Dealy and since at least seven of our prominent cadets told us that Miss Sloan was their guest, we will let you ask her.

Miss Elaine Bizzell honored us again this week and with her was her charming room-mate Miss Dorothy Benners.

Miss Mary Bain from Houston who is the guest of Miss Kathleen Sims of Bryan, Miss Pattie Sims and Miss Gertrude Sims all made the evening more pleasant for many of us.

Miss Ona Astin and her two pretty visitors, Miss Florence Perkins and Miss Frances Vaughn from State, and Miss Josephine Eden were here for the week-end and all attended the dance Saturday.

Two Dances This Week-End.

Now that we are through holding "post mortems" let us give you something to look forward to. With last Saturdays dance still on your minds, think of how good another one will be this coming week. At the same time, the same place, with the same good music, that sounds good doesn't it? Now that you have that firmly fixed on your mind, here is something more. After those Owls come down here Friday and get all of their tail feathers pulled out and after Charlie Waugh wrings some of their necks, there will be a dance at the Elks Hall in Bryan.

Now is your opportunity, date up one of those Rice-ettes for the week-end and make it a good one. A football game, a dance in Bryan, and a corps dance, what better could you want?

Tuesday night after the rodeo a most enjoyable German was held at the Elk's Hall in Bryan. The syncopating charms of Aggieland's orchestra poured forth until the "wee small hours of the morning." Practically the entire court of the rodeo was present attired in the beautiful costumes representing the various nations of the world. Many of the visitors of the previous week-end stayed over which added a factor which is usually lacking at A. and M. dances—enough girls.

IMPRESSIONS OF A. AND M. COLLEGE.

(George C. Purl of Dallas, a member of the State Legislature, recently returned from a visit to the State Agricultural and Mechanical College at College Station. He gave out the following statement Friday relative to his impressions of the institution and the student body):

"One of the most interesting and delightful two days I have ever experienced was recently at the State Agricultural and Mechanical College at College Station, Texas. There I found every student attending this school treated exactly alike, both by the faculty and the student body as well. I saw boys who had spent the greater part of the day in the hog barns, boys who attended the sheep, the cattle, the horses, boys who stoked the furnaces, and even boys who worked their way through school acting as nurses to the babies on faculty row. Also I saw boys whose fathers, perhaps, owned large plantations, and were large taxpayers and could have easily sent their sons to some eastern school, but preferred to send them to a Texas institution because they wanted them to attend school with the boys they would meet in after life.

"The rich man's son is treated absolutely the same as the poorest boy down at A. and M. And, greater than all, the rich man's son generally chums with some boy who is working his way through school.

No Class Distinction.

"Down at A. and M. there is absolutely no class distinction, no secret fraternities, no cliques, no snob societies. The result is that after a boy has gone to that great State institution four years and is graduated, he realizes that he owes a great debt to the State of Texas, one that he can never repay except by living a useful life and trying to help some deserving boy go through college.

"If you want to see a sure enough reunion attend one of the A. and M. commencement exercises, if you want to see some real rooting attend one of the A. and M. football games. Any time you see a man who has attended A. and M. College you can bet dollars to doughnuts that you are talking to a real man in every respect; in fact, a Southern gentleman who is proud of his alma mater and is anxious to see his school succeed, not only because he loves A. and M., but because he loves Texas. It might also interest you to know that when the World War came on, A. and M. College of Texas furnished more officers for Uncle Sam than any other school in America.

"I believe that the A. and M. College is the most Democratic school in America, and the loyalty to that institution as manifested by its former students is nothing short of marvelous, and, although it was not my good fortune to attend any university, still I know that fellows who did attend this great school have something that I haven't got, and I want to take this opportunity of congratulating the officials in all their splendid work, and especially so in the fair manner in which they merchandise their football tickets, and at the same time I want to vigorously protest against the manner in which the State University has handled the State University-S. M. U. football tickets."—Dallas Times-Herald.
