

EDITOR'S NOTE.

This, our first attempt at publishing a cross word puzzle, may or may not meet with your approval. We believe that there is a sufficiently large number of students who have selected cross word puzzles as their vocations or avocations, according to the degree of interest, to warrant a puzzle in each edition.

The above is the result of the efforts of V. "Tiny" Curtiss, '26, and is especially suitable for the cadets of A. and M. This originator states that there is as much satisfaction in making a puzzle as there is in its solution. If such is the case, The Battalion requests that all such aspirants turn in their puzzles to the editor. The best will be selected for publication.

We advise you to go to the Library where you will have free access to dictionaries and encyclopedias. Luck to you.

The CASE Engineering Code

Extensive Field Work the Best Laboratory

WITH all the ingenuity and effort of the most exacting engineers, even of the competent, resourceful men who design Case machines, no machine ever reaches the highest state of development until it has been used extensively in field work.

The reason is obvious. The best laboratory and experimental field tests known furnish only limited opportunities for improvement as compared to the infinite variety of conditions met with in extensive field operation.

Here again, this Company is fortunate. We have thousands of machines in operation, in every civilized country on the globe. Every condition of soil, crop, power, weather, climate and handling is represented in field reports on the operation of Case machines.

We maintain a department for the monthly classification and analysis of the accurate information contained in these reports. This system enables Case engineers to proceed with certainty toward refinements far in advance of the ordinary. This is why Case machines meet so successfully all the requirements of profitable farming.
