

TRAGEDIES OF THE WEEK.

Dirty—"Say, Chuck, did you get an invitation to your girl's wedding?"
 Chuck—"Naw! Did you get one to your's?"

Dirty—"Naw."
 Chuck—"Ain't women hell?"

Dime says that he's happy.
 Rickey says that he wishes he was.

Blow Bowden is surely worried. Ain't it the devil to come to college five years to learn how to farm and then have oil wells blow in all over the old place and then not have any suitable land on which to farm? I say, ain't it?

Mit Dansby says he was introduced to a mighty sweet girl at the dance the other night, Esther McCulloch, I believe he said her name was.

Aunt Mirandy says she don't know what the world will be making next as she read in the paper where the wire drawer makers had gone on a strike.

Broke A-gin.
 It's a pleasure to be able to lend
 If the borrower be a worthy friend,
 If he be man enough to try to repay,
 Or at least appear of the allotted day
 And face you squarely and meekly grin
 And frankly say, "I'm broge a-gin."

Say, Have'ya?
 Ever had a girl down for a big dance
 and
 Fall inlove with her 'till
 You couldn't eat, you couldn't sleep?
 And during the last dance Saturday night
 Just break down and tell her that
 You loved her and have your heart
 Jump up in your throat when she Snuggled up close to you and said she Loved you and always would.
 Then when you took her home that Night and she was just so tired and sleepy
 You felt the manly instinct to protect
 And left early determined that you
 Would propose on the morrow.
 You didn't go straight to your bunk
 But walked in the cool night air
 Alone with your thoughts.
 And as you crossed the street nearly
 Have a car run you down,
 You looked up and saw the girl you
 LOVED "late-dating" with a guy from State?
VIC KENNEDY DID.

HONESTY.

What proportion of men are honest? Answers will vary according to the type of person who gives the answer. The optimist would say that practically all men were honest. The cynic would doubtless say that honest men do not exist.

From the Texas Commercial News we learn of the origin of a very remarkable fund which furnishes data worthy of consideration.

Just about a hundred years ago, some one sent five dollars to the treasury at Washington, indicating that it was intended to repay a similar sum taken from the government.

This was the beginning of what is now known as the "conscience fund." Since that time, thousands of such offerings have been received from people who had in one way or another defrauded the government and who found in the end that their conscience would give them no rest until they had made restitution. The fund now shows that over six hundred thousand dollars have been received in this manner by the government. The sum ranges from a postage stamp to the record sum of thirty thousand dollars.

A story which practically all college men are familiar with is that of the alumnus of a college who after many years returned his diploma to the president of his Alma Mater with the statement that he was unworthy of his degree for he had cheated his way thru college relying on others for his required information.

Upon considering instances similar to the above, we may be inclined to view the world thru a rose colored glass and think that all men are honest. But the first day in attending that most efficient school of all, the school of Experience, we learn, sometimes to our sorrow, that only a small percentage of our population is honest, but since human nature varies according to conditions, this percentage is never constant.

7 Busy Mills Located for Your Service

Economy is the very key-note of the Purina plan of feeding.

That is the reason why Purina Chows are made in seven Purina mills instead of one.

Each mill is located at a point in the center of a farming area where ingredients can be economically assembled, and rations can be economically distributed to the farmer.

Each mill serves its own territory exclusively, and each bag of Purina Chows is laid down at the feed dealer's door and at the consumer's farm at the lowest possible cost.

As long as the Purina Mills recommend that all users of Purina Chows keep exact records of their feed cost, it is up to the Purina Mills to be certain that Purina Chows do lower the feed cost.

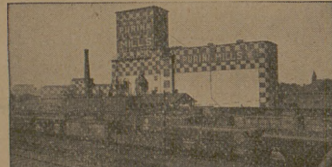

The economical distribution of Purina Chows made possible by seven Purina Mills is just one of the factors which play a part in producing rations that produce more milk, eggs, pork and beef at less cost to the farmer.
