

SADDLE AND SIRLOINERS HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

Escintilating the spirit of their organization, the members of the Saddle and Sirloin Club of the A. and M. College of Texas, held their annual picnic at Royal Pond last Wednesday evening, May the thirteenth. The Royal Pond is a delightfully located site for such a joyous affair, being in Crenshaw's pasture, which is near the Bryan Country Club and also close to the Bryan-College road, and seems to be a favored spot for picnics and banquets for both Bryan people and College students alike.

As a prelude to the picnic proper, the "profs" of the Animal Husbandry Department and Seniors of the Saddle and Sirloin Club became entangled in "Babe" Ruth's favorite sport. The game was a hit and run contest in which both sides did much of each. Save for the errors of the stellar ball player, Professor Williams, the score might have been more highly in favor of the "Profs"; but as it happened, the score was "Profs" 8, Seniors 1. This score is not absolutely official as the ball came very near to hitting the score keeper and he forgot how many runs the "Profs" had made.

After the game had been completed, about sixty people, including the members of the Saddle and Sirloin Club, the Animal Husbandry professors and their wives, herdsmen, and a few guests, made a charge for the "eats". About an hour and a half of barbecued beef, pork, and mutton, formed the major part of the menu, while fried potatoes and pickles were in abundance. A dessert of ice cream completed the menu.

Professor Stangel and Colonel Frank Stubbs tied for first place in the amount of barbecue eaten. "Sketer" Johnson said that it was a handicap match in which he lost heavily on account of his lack of capacity.

After dinner, President Kimble of the Saddle and Sirloin Club introduced Dean Kyle who was the speaker of the evening. Dean Kyle complimented the club very highly because of its progress and the good work that it is doing. He also promised to donate some books and several sets of horns to the Saddle and Sirloin Club room.

The few hours flew by almost as minutes, and the picnic came to a close. Every one departed enthusiastically wishing that the Saddle and Sirloin Club picnics would come more often than once a year.

ADDED FEATURES IN AGRICULTURAL ADMINISTRATION FOR 1925-26

A number of courses will be open to students in Agricultural Administration next year, both in the undergraduate and graduate division of the college. The Department of Economics is adding three courses which will be of interest to Agricultural Administration men, that is, "Economics of Insurance," "Labor Problems," and "Foreign Trade and Exchange." The mathematics department is adding a course which will be given throughout the year on the "Mathematical Analysis of Statistics." The department of Agricultural Economics is going to offer for the first time a course in "Cooperative Marketing of Farm Products," and also another course in the "Economics of Cotton." The course in "Agricultural Resources" will extend from a one term to a two term course.

In addition to the foregoing subjects, a number of graduate courses in Agricultural Economics, previously listed in the catalog, will be offered by the department next year for the first time.

Dr. F. A. Buechel, Head of the Course in Agricultural Administration, hopes to be able to make the course in "Cooperative Marketing of Farm Products" especially interesting as a result of the connection he is to have this summer with the Institute of Cooperative Marketing as a member of its staff. The Institute will hold a four weeks' session in Philadelphia under the auspices of practically all the leading cooperative organizations of the country.
