GIRLS

In days of old,
When knights were bold,
And wore a suit of tin,

When the suit went by,
Though she knew not the man within.

In those sweet days
The armor craze
Was started; and it grew.
A girl would meet
Her hero sweet,
And then—be black and blue!

The knights of today
Are blithe and gay

Each maid does sigh
As the car goes by;
She heeds not the man within.

In these sweet days
It is a craze
In tinny cars to roam.
So late at night
(I know I'm right)
Are girlies walking home.

WORKING STUDENTS AFFLICT- ED WITH LOW WAGES ARE TOLD TO ORGANIZE

A student labor union? The Daily Kansan suggests this as a remedy for low wages on the University of Kansas campus.

According to the local Y. M. C. A. employment bureau there are almost twice as many applicants for jobs as there are jobs to be filled. Consequently local employers take advantage of the situation and pay miserably low wages. The students who must work to remain in college, are not in a position to protest.

Higher wages, which would make it unnecessary to work long hours, hence permit more to be employed, can be obtained only through the concerted effort of the student workers, The Daily Kansan believes.

It is not necessary, the paper says, "that the organization be called a union, but that is what it must be. The difficulty is to convince student

The unignorable fact stands out that they are inherently a part of a bourgeoisie which considers labor menial, and labor organizations symptomatic of bolshevism."

"Will they, supposedly educated, be able to break away from class prejudices when it is to their common good?"

(The New Student).

Herbert Frels (in Zoology): "Prof, my father says we originated from apes."

Prof. English (impatiently): "Your family affairs are of no importance in class."

Agnes says that her father must be getting very near-sighted, as the other day she caught him kissing the maid instead of her mother.
