

HEDGES AND BRAYTON
EDIT NEW TEXTBOOK FOR INORGANIC CHEMISTRY

Dr. C. C. Hedges, head of the department of chemistry and chemical engineering and H. R. Brayton, professor of inorganic chemistry, of the A. and M. College of Texas, are the authors of a new chemistry textbook bearing the title of "Laboratory Manual of Inorganic Chemistry and Elementary Qualitative Analysis," being published by D. C. Heath and Company, New York. This text will be used with all classes in general chemistry this fall at the A. and M. College. It was developed by the authors as the result of ten years of its actual use in the laboratory with freshman classes.

A unique feature of this text is that experiment formulas are printed in it on gummed and perforated paper. These formulas may be detached and used in any style of note book. Several institutions from pre-publication examinations of the manuscript are considering its adoption as a textbook.

Dr. Hedges is the author of several other textbooks among them being "Laboratory Manual of Agricultural Chemistry," published first by Ginn and Company in 1908. He is the co-author with W. T. Bryant of the "Official Method for Analysis of Paris Green" used by the Government, and co-author with W. A. Stone of "A Method for Analysis of Lead Arsenate."

Get fightin' mad for that old faculty gang!

Write that old quiz grade on your pillow and sleep on it, men!

Get in there and study. Try to be distinguished in some other way than as a mealhound.

Lincoln studied by blazing pine knots and you have 40 watt frosted globes. Study darn you.

Think of those old profs in the Chem. dep't.—giving their heart and soul and olfactory nerves for your education.

When the bell rings to end the lecture go up and speak to that old prof. Let him know you're interested in his course!

Dust off those text books. Grease up that old slide rule. If you haven't got that old studious spirit, go lie down in the Rotunda at night and dream about it. You gotta get it, Gang!

There Must Be A Profit

NO INDUSTRY or individual business can long continue without a suitable profit. Therefore there must be profit in farming, because it goes on year after year.

Profit is all contained in the margin between selling prices and production costs. On this margin a few farmers "go broke," others make a good living and many grow wealthy.

Since the selling price at any given time is the same to all farmers it is evident that prosperous farmers are producing at lower costs than those who do not prosper.

How do they do it? Mostly by cutting down power and labor costs through the use of more efficient machinery. It is significant that many of the most prosperous farms are equipped with Case machines—built and sold since 1842 to make more money for their owners.
