

AGGIES FAIL TO BREAK FROG JINX

DROP-KICKS

That game Saturday certainly proved that a fighting team cannot be whipped. Both teams were fighting—you saw the result.

After the game there was much talk among Ft. Worth people of a "moral victory." Ye Editor has often wondered what a moral victory is good for. It doesn't count anything in the percentage column.

The cadet corps made a wonderful showing in Fort Worth—not only in the parade but at the game. It was hot and uncomfortable in the stands but the cadets were yelling just as loud and strong in the last quarter as when the team first came on the field.

In passing we want to take this space to compliment the T. C. U. student body and team on the clean play and sportsmanship they showed last Saturday.

Looking over last week's scores we find much food for serious thought. S. M. U. and Texas both showed remarkable scoring power. We have two weeks in which to prepare ourselves for the raid of the "Morrison Scoring Machine."

In the meantime Texas Tech is going to try its best to defeat us, as a victory over the Texas Aggies would give them considerable publicity in the football world.

CROSS-COUNTRY TEAM PICKED FOR 1927 SEASON

Will Meet Loughorns November 5.

Ten men from a group of twenty have been selected for places on the Texas Aggie cross country squad for 1927 as the result of the showing made in competition races held last week.

Although there were four squad men from last year in the competition the best showing was made by men from last year's freshman squad. Three out of the first five to complete the course and seven out of the ten selected for places on the squad are athletes who are running their first year for the varsity.

In the order in which they finished in the first competition race, those chosen for places are: J. G. Killian, Alvord; J. P. Avila, San Antonio; E. Thompson, Cameron; A. B. Childers, (Capt.) Jasper; C. Y. Shoemaker, Jacksonville; G. H. Moore, Dallas; J. B. Michael, Fort Worth; E. E. Kyser, Marlin; J. B. Haile, Goliad; E. W. Sudderth, Leonard. The four squadmen are Captain Childers, Avila, Haile, and Moore.

The squad is being put through daily workouts and one competition each week by Coaches Frank Anderson and S. D. Snyder in preparation for the first dual meet with the Texas Longhorns at College Station November 5. The event will take place at the same time the S. M. U.-Aggie football game is being played and spectators at the game will be able to view both contests.

Other meets scheduled for this year are with Rice at Houston November 11, the day of the Owl-Aggie gridiron clash, and the conference meet at Dallas November 19 when S. M. U. will be host to the conference teams.

AGGIES TO VISIT PLAINS

Friday, October 28th the A. & M. football team will trot out on the field at Lubbock as the first Southwestern Conference team to play on the plains. They will be given a welcome second to that of the cadet corps alone, as there will be hundreds of old Aggies there from all over the plains who want to see if they can still give "Farmers Fight" with that old roar from 'way down deep. The plain's people have been looking forward to this game for a year and they are planning a wonderful reception for the team and for all the old Aggies who will congregate there for the game.

The Texas Tech Matadors have been pointing to this game, as a victory over Texas A. & M. would give them the recognition in the football world that they desire. Their school is very young but they have had remarkable success on the gridiron and nothing would please them better than to defeat the Aggies. The Matadors are coached by Ewing Freeland, who will be remembered for his success at S. M. U., as he helped coach the Mustang team that first brought S. M. U. into prominence.

The Aggie team will be without the personal support of the cadet corps and with the long railroad trip up there we look for a hard close game.

FISH FOOTBALL SQUAD CUT TO 60 MEN

The fifth week of practice finds the freshman football squad of the A. & M. College of Texas reduced to 60 candidates who have been selected as the most promising of the nearly 200 who reported for practice at the beginning of the season.

One hundred men were outfitted for practice at the opening of training and as various ones of these dropped out new ones took their places until all of the applicants had been given a tryout.

The squad has been divided into two groups, one under the direction of R. G. Higginbotham and Henry Eitt and the other under Frank G. Anderson and D. C. McIntosh. Higginbotham, a star of past years on the Texas Aggie team who is still known as "Little Hig" is freshman coach, while Eitt, former A. & M. player, and "Doc" McIntosh, member of the college faculty, are assistants. Frank Anderson, track coach, has been helping in the football training work as

FARMERS AND FROGS BATTLE TO SCORELESS TIE

Once more the strong Aggie team went against the weaker Frogs and again they were met by a ringing defeat. For defeat it was to the Aggies, the corps as well as the team.

Under-rated by the newspapers, the T. C. U. Frogs proved themselves last Saturday to be one of the strongest defensive football teams in the Southwestern Conference. Time and again the Aggies, lead by Hunt with his famed ability, were stopped for downs and again, as in the past two years, the Frog wall of defense held the Farmer machine within a few yards of the goal line for a scoreless tie. Both teams entered the contest with a determination to win that was invincible, both student bodies were keyed to the pitch where all were putting out with their all, and neither could be denied.

In the first play of the game the breaks went against the Farmers that might have given a victory to T. C. U. if they had been playing another team, but the Fighting Farmers settled down to their aggressive game and soon got the ball into the opponent's territory where most of the remaining part of the game was played. Hunt was watched constantly and, lacking Conover, Burgess and Varnell to give him his accustomed interference, they were on him like a ton of brick. The success of the Aggie aerial game was mediocre and the running attack was less. The total number of yards gained by the entire team was less than that gained by Hunt alone in any of the other games played this year, an outcome of the superior defensive game of the Frogs and lack of the driving interference of the regular Aggie backfield.

Hunt, Jefferies, Lister, Bartlett and Deffebach were the outstanding stars for the Farmers and Williams, who was able to play for only a few minutes of the game on account of injuries, was the star for the Frogs.

Mathews, hefty end, Toler, playing safety, and Melton, a new tackle in the Southwestern Conference, were outstanding players for the "Fighting Frogs."
