

The Horses Are Coming!

DROP-KICKS

Aggies vs. the Mustangs, Kyle Field November 5.

Joel Hunt vs. Gerald Mann, same place, same time.

Oh sister, won't that be hot? The game will not only be a deciding factor in the Southwestern Conference race, but will just about decide who will be quarterback on that mythical All-Conference eleven. Add to that the fact that the winner of this sensational contest may be given a chance to play a New Years game on the Pacific coast and then think what a game it will be.

Saturday's game will see in action two of the strongest teams the Southwest Conference has known in years. The Mustangs are leading the Conference with a perfect average, while the Aggies are trailing only a half game behind. The Mustangs, who have not lost a conference game in two years, showed a dazzling offense and an impregnable defense in defeating Missouri of the Missouri Valley Conference, victor over Nebraska and Northwestern, and Texas and Rice of the Southwestern Conference. The Aggies have shown a brilliant attack in defeating Sewanee, Arkansas, and Texas Tech, and in these victories their line appeared to be one of the best the conference has had in recent years. The Aggies and T. C. U. Frogs played a 0 to 0 tie in Fort Worth, but three of A. and M.'s backfield stars were out of the line-up with injuries.

If the Mustangs defeat the Aggies Saturday, football critics believe that the S. M. U. eleven will march undefeated to its second consecutive championship. If the Aggies defeat the Mustangs, critics expect the Aggies to win the championship, provided they can handle the Longhorns on Kyle Field Thanksgiving.

Another added attraction for Saturday will be a cross-country race between the Aggies and the Longhorns which will end on Kyle Field between halves of the football game.

The Aggies cross-country team is going to put up a strong bid for the conference championship this year, (Continued on page 9)

INTRAMURAL ATHLETICS

Much Enthusiasm Shown by Student Body in Games This Year.

Up to date intra-mural sports in Aggieland this year have shown a vast increase in both interests and participants over any records of the past. There is a reason. A large number of both freshmen and upperclassmen who are possessors of natural ability and ambitions worthy of any sportsman are given their trial and a number make good, resulting in additional varsity material.

At present basketball, volleyball, and tennis are the games now in intra-mural season. The cross-country track meet will be held in the early part of December and those who are planning to enter are urged to be ready when the date set arrives.

With a continuation of the present interests, A. & M. College will set a record for intra-mural sports that will be hard for any other college or university to equal, and it is hoped that each man will do his part.

AGGIES DEFEAT TEXAS TECH. 47-0

Mixing a deadly overhead attack with occasional end runs and off tackle brushes by Hunt, the Texas Aggies overpowered the hard-fighting Texas Tech eleven last Friday by a score of 47 to 6.

Tech started off with a startling defense for the Aggie line rushes, but in the latter period the Maroon's bewildering passing attack completely swept the Matadors off their feet.

A. & M. scored first with a safety in the first few minutes of play but Tech came back with a touchdown by Nichlaus and the quarter ended with Tech leading, 6 to 2.

In the second quarter the Aggies brought the ball to the Tech one-yard line by a long pass, Hunt to Petty, and then Hunt crashed right tackle for the Aggies' first touchdown of the game. The half ended with the score 8 to 6 in favor of A. & M.

The Aggies "got right" in the third quarter and gave the West Texas fans an exhibition of running and passing that they will never forget. Pinky Alsabrook showed-off in front of his home folks by making a couple of touchdowns and Joel Hunt, not to be outdone by his roommate, made a couple himself. The half ended with the score 8 to 6 in favor of A. & M.

The fourth quarter was a repetition of the third, with every man in the backfield carrying the ball for substantial gains. Conover and Davis each got a touchdown in this period, Conover going over left tackle for his and Davis circling right end for the other.

This game marked the return to the lineup of Conover and Varnell in the backfield, and Wylie in the line. Wylie must have been doing good because the coach let him stay in the game longer than any man on the team. "Sloppy" Rogers turned in a nice game too. Willie Bartlett made his presence felt by blocking a punt on the Tech 5 yard line, in addition to playing his usual bang-up game. In the backfield Pinky Alsabrook was the individual star, although Hunt performed in brilliant fashion. It would be difficult to name all the stars, as so many played, and in a game like that everyone looks good.

"Now that you've finished college, what do you intend to do?"
"I'm going to work with you, Dad."
"But Great Scott, I've retired!"
"Exactly, Pop."

MUSTANGS INVADE AGGIELAND NOV. 5

Spectacular Battle Expected.

Next Saturday after the last whistle blows in the fray between the Texas Aggies and S. M. U. Mustangs the winner of the Southwestern Conference Championship will, to a large extent, have been determined. S. M. U., the leaders in the race, winners of title last year, and the favorites for honor this year, only need this victory to cinch the title for them and the Aggies, second in standing for the honor, will need the victory to remain in the race.

Aggies Have All to Lose and Nothing to Gain

The Aggies have all to lose and nothing to gain for victory will leave them practically in the same relative position as they are now and if they lose—they lose all. For this reason if no other, the Ponies should encounter an inspired Aggie team next Saturday. However recent history shows that the Ponies have won from inspired Aggie teams, the score in 1922 was 17 to 6 in favor of the Mustangs and in 1923 they won by score of 10 to 0. In 1924 they battled to a 7 to 7 tie in Dallas and next year the Aggies, backed by a fighting, crying and yelling corps, were lucky to nose them out in a 7 to 0 victory. That year conditions were much as they are this year, both teams were evenly matched in defense and running attack but the Mustang's aerial attack was far superior to that of the Aggies. The Aggies took the lead in early part of the game and fought to maintain it, 2300 of them, and they were successful.

Game Will Be Won in First Quarter

In like manner the game next Saturday will probably be played, as the Aggies are slow at beginning their drive while S. M. U. usually begins like a tornado; both teams are equally matched with the exception of S. M. U. having the edge on the passing ability of Mann, and the Aggies, to win, will have to fight hardest in the first quarter.

Both Teams Playing Air Route

The teams of S. M. U. have always been noted for their aerial combination and the team that Bible has put out this year is the greatest passing team in the history of the school, both teams have brilliant defensive merits, for these reasons the game will likely open up in the air. Hunt is a great passer but Mann is more
