

TEXAS NEWS IN BRIEF

Special from San Antonio "Blight."
Citizens of this city are overjoyed with the fact that next week's election will give them a chance to vote a bond issue to pipe chili into every home in the city. The only opposition to the issue is found among those who prefer a conveyor system for the distribution of tamales.

Dispatch from the Roscoe "Reporter":
C. Ray Smith, prominent young man about town and former dashing, smashing fullback on Roscoe's peerless eleven, sends home notice that he is right hand man to the head of his Department and is making good at college in a big way.

Excerpt from the Port Arthur "Palaver":
Mr. Anson Feet of this city has finally perfected his invention of a combination gas mask, umbrella, and mosquito trap. The Chamber of Commerce is backing production of the invention and high officials of the city claim that as soon as it is placed on the market that white people can be induced to live in Port Arthur.

By Assorted Press from the San Augustine "Sun":
John Franklin Blount, who will be remembered in the San Augustine younger set by reason of having been voted the most handsome boy, the most popular boy, the wittiest boy, and the boy most likely to succeed each year of his four years in high school, recently won a ketchup eating contest conducted by O. H. Hegemann and the Sbisa Volunteers of the A. and M. College of Texas.
