

There were no visible lanes, as the entire track was covered with water, and only the concrete curbs were visible.

The Aggie mile relay team, our only hopeful in the meet, proved not to be as good mud horses as some of the others, and consequently was listed among the muddy horses in the also ran class, coming out a good sixth to be exact. The winning time for the event however, was a mere 3:21, which only goes to show the class of competition we were competing in.

Monday the Aggies meet the S. M. U. Mustangs on Kyle Field. Last year the meet was originally scheduled for Dallas, but was later transferred because of work on the Mustang Field. The Pony team arrived, but rain and cold weather caused the cancellation of the meet.

A WOODCUT LANDSCAPE

across the sky,

A surgeon's probe trying to find a god.
 Slowly comfort changes to pain as a hard rock prods,
 And the smooth grassed ground becomes lumpy and full
 Of crawling things that bite.
 A curse as movement finds a darkness hidden cactus,
 A grunt as sleepy muscles heave a tired body up,
 A quiet hours musing on a hill top
 Ends in boredom and disgust.
 The moon looks slightly sick tonight.

 All during this procedure she had moved about absorbed in the happiness of the day, unaware of what was in store for her. She had noticed nothing.
 The brute had now advanced within striking distance. Soon he would have her, soon he would satisfy the passion that burnt in those fiendish eyes. At last he poised as if to pounce upon her. She was passing very close to him. He jumped.... and....
 Aw, hell, it was only that old Tom Cat in back of Leggett trying to catch a humming bird.
