

IMPRESSIONS OF MOTHER'S DAY PROGRAM

The great mass of the population of Aggie-land was gathered in Guion Hall for the observance of Mother's Day. Dripping wet they filed in, but even the drabness of the skies outside could not dampen the reverent spirit permeating the lofty white walls of the hall. Along with the cadets came scores of mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, and sweethearts, each one intent upon paying homage to the greatest of all human institutions—the institution of motherhood.

Soft music played by the musicians melted in with the sweet voices of the chorus of boys and girls. Finally the music stopped, and a trimly dressed cadet stepped forward to deliver the invocation. He did his part well, but his one prayer was but one of several thousand that went up at that time. Here and there among the solid khaki ranks a head would be suddenly bowed, and a prayer would be offered for that mother so many miles away. Here a mother and son would lean a little closer together, and each would offer a prayer for the safety of the other. Sister clasped the hand of brother, and brother that of mother and father. From some hearts, almost stilled with sad memories, there went up prayers for the mother that would never return.

Outside there seemed to be a rustling, and some boys felt relieved—felt relieved because they somehow knew that their prayers had been heard and answered, and that somewhere off in the distance there was a mother praying for her absent son. It was Mother's Day.

PRIZE PAINTINGS

were on exhibition at the 'Y' Chapel during the past week. A large number of Bryan people and visitors from all over the state, here for Mother's Day, viewed the collection.

The canvasses covered the subjects of Texas Wildflowers, Ranch and Cotton scenes and a fourth class for Texas artists only. The paintings included the work of some of the outstanding artists of the United States, from Texas to New York. Prizes totaling $31,000 were offered by Mr. Davis in the competition in San Antonio at which the paintings shown here were adjudged winners. At a dinner in San Antonio, when the prize winners were announced, Mr. Davis indicated that the competition would not be continued in Texas for another year but that he expected to make an effort to reorganize it on a national basis.

COMMANDMENTS FOR A COLLEGE PROF.

1. Thou shalt love no college except This Particular One.
2. Thou shalt have no wordly interests outside the College; neither shalt thou serve them, nor make any money therefrom. For the College is a jealous College, and does not approve any division of interest.
3. Thou shalt not know many of the Trustees; for the College will not hold him guiltless who cultivates the Trustees—in vain.

4. Remember the Sabbath Day, not to play golf therein. Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work; but on the seventh day shalt thou be with thy family, and in it thou shalt beat the rugs, wash the windows, clean the car, and also grade student papers and prepare lectures for the coming week.

5. Thou shalt approve of everything, both in the Faculty and Student Body. This the fifth and great commandment.

6. Thou shalt not grumble nor cuss at anything whatsoever.

7. Thou shalt not dress too well, nor drive an expensive car.

8. Thou nor thy wife nor thy children shall not tell tales in any public place against thy neighbor or any student.

9. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's salary, nor his house, nor his dog, nor his Clubs, nor any pull that he has.

10. Honor the College and all its ways, that thy days may be long upon the Campus which thy College hath given thee to walk and work on, loving and serving all the students with all thy soul and with all thy mind and with all thy strength. And in the end a few of them will remember thee and richly reward thy services to the College with their friendship and esteem.

TALK ABOUT YO POPPAS

Talk about yo poppas, well I got one, Lissen while I tell you what he do. He comes in evy night lookin' like a fright,

And sometimes wit de jim jams too. He makes me hole a needle for to thread it,

Him what can't even see the bed, An then he makes me lock the door an hole it,

To keep tha great big snake out his head.

One night he clam up on tha mantle shelf,

Lookin' for some grains of corn to peck,

Then he dove off in the bright and shinin' water

An like to broke his damn fool neck. He got the idee once he was a angel, An I was the devil's maiden aunt.

He though he could convert me just by preachin',

You shoul'da heard that fool rave an rant

An once he thought I wuz a trained seal,

Tried to make me balance flat irons on my nose,

Then chased me out the house an up a tree,

'Cause I dropped one on his blasted toes.

Oh he gives me hell in plenty evy night,

What with this an that an kther things he tries,

But when mawnin' comes he always wakes up to tell me,

The very sweetest kind of lovin' lies. How he dreampt last night he made a million dollars,

An spent it all for cushions for my feet.

How he went down town an foun' an empty shoe box,

That turned into a purple bridal suite.

How the kids can all have custard after school.

And the mocking birds will sing us off to sleep.

How we'll never have to listen to the nasal

Jews that holler all day long CHEAP.

But when night comes he's off again to guzzle,

And swill in his rotten, stinkin' beer, He's really worth about a million dollars

An I'm the one that spends it. Is it clear?

This Smoke

Dear Friends:

I have been a very heavy pipe smoker for the last thirty years, and have always used Edgeworth Tobacco (Plug Slice) and find there is no other tobacco like it for a cool and well flavored taste.

I am in the vaudeville business, and have traveled all over the world with my brother, and always have had very great pleasure in recommending your tobacco; and many a time I have had to pay double the price in different countries for it, but I would sooner do that than smoke anything else, as I have tried all different brands. I generally buy a one-pound tin and roll it up; and believe me, gentlemen, it is real tobacco.

With best wishes from
Yours sincerely,
