

to the showers. Wendt replaced Fritz and Tech scored three more runs on four hits.

Howell, flinger for the Matadors, issued nine free passes to first. Rechenberg whiffed three men, while Wendt and Howell sent five each to the bench swinging. Marshall, also of the visitors clouted the circuit blow this game. Johns got a long three-base knock. Old Man Bray, the veteran right fielder and only man lost to the club by graduation, had a perfect day at bat, getting three runs, three hits, one walk and one hit by pitched ball. Bell hit two out of four trips to the plate and continued his hitting spree which started with the S. M. U. series in Dallas.

The Matadors had a regular sensation to write home to Grandma about—a one handed fielder and furthermore he turned in two or three first class plays that not many able bodied fly hawks in the Conference could execute.

This was the Aggies last non-conference game. Coaih Countryman loses only one man from the present team, Bray, a veteran right fielder. Coach Roswell Higginbotham has several promising freshmen that should bolster the team considerable. He has three excellent pitchers, one or two good outfielders and two extra good infielders.

ON TRADITION

We agree with you in that the campus idiocies and incongruities are both useless and obsolete, and that something should be tried which would have a chance for a small degree of success in placing them on the shelf permanently. A tradition is easily made—the trouble comes in casting it aside when its usefulness has come to an end. It seems true in our case that a thing once done becomes a tradition, good or bad. They are not like old clothes, but have an uncanny tenacity for holding a prominent place. The trouble lies in attempting to weed out those which are harmful in effect and casting them aside.

On the other hand, it is evident to the person possessing at least a small amount of common sense that cynicism greatly facilitates the work of the reformer. Undoubtedly it is a powerful weapon. However, it too can be overdone. If it accomplishes its purpose in so many words, then is the time to desist. Why try to tear away the last remnants of a once great belief? If that which we still have left to us serves a purpose, then let us keep it. It may be comparatively easy to analyze some of our present day doctrines and prove that there is nothing to them. Civilization is largely made up of false pretenses and sham, it must be admitted.

Therefore, since the world is constantly changing it is the best policy to keep up with it. In our own case it is evident how easily this fact will apply. But if there are some of us who still believe we are one great brotherhood, and if this belief works to our advantage in the capacity of making life here just a little more bearable, then why should it be dissolved.
