

Brown, Richter, Van Zandt, and Tracy—this quartet of veteran Texas Aggie linemen is expected to prove a knotty problem to the backs of Bo McMillan's Kansas Aggie eleven when they attempt to pierce or circle the Maroon and White line in the intersectional grid tilt at Fair Park Stadium, Dallas, October 12. Roscoe Van Zandt, 200-pound guard from Fort Worth, was a sensation as a sophomore and this year is expected to have an even greater season at his old berth, at any rate his performance in the Tulane game gave indications of this. Rube Tracy, Houston, is one of the fastest wingmen in the Southwest and will be difficult for the Kansans to handle either on the offense or the defense.

Joe Brown, veteran pivot man from Alvord, will hold down his old post. He has been hustling by Abbey. Chuck Richter, three-year guard, last year received considerable all-Southwest mention and this season is expected to figure prominently when the final selections for the mythical eleven are made. Chuck was injured in the Pirate game and did not see service in New Orleans.

AGGIES LOSE FIRST INTERSECTIONAL TILT

Second Team Shows Class.

On a wet and muddy field and in a deluge of rain the Tulane Greenies took the Aggies measure 13-10 in one of the first outstanding games of the South this year. But the score doesn't half tell the story it should be. Neither does the fact that the Aggies made 12 first downs to their opponents 7. Bell's men got none of the breaks except the tough ones and not many teams have been known to win on that type. As the first half ended, Mills and Company had the ball on Tulane's three-yard line and four downs to make it in. On two other occasions we lost the ball on the two-yard line, but then, credit must be given to the mighty Tulane line, inspired by such shining stars as Bodenger and Dalrymple. Practically the whole game was played in a driving rain, and under the circumstances the functioning of the Aggie passing attack was nothing short of remarkable.

Before the crowd had hardly seated themselves the thorn in the Aggies side, Armstrong, scooted around end for some 77 yards to mark up the first counter of the day. In the second quarter after Mills had completed a pass to McFadden, Zarry tossed a lateral pass to Mills who escorted a couple of Greenies across the goal line for the Aggies lone touchdown. The Green Wave's second touchdown showed the rough edges on Matty Bell's team, but things such as this happen.

Captain Mills may have failed to do some of the things that stamp a player as the best, but the way he eluded Tulane's interferences and nabbed the fleet Banker is nobody's business. Mills, Zarafonetis, and Conover were the reason for the Tulane star's first exit from a football game. But of stars of the game, "Bull" Floyd can be ranked with the best, with Armstrong who carried the Greenies to victory. Bull stamped himself as a regular by his brilliant work. He tackled, blocked, ran interference, snatched passes, and did everything that would make him the outstanding Aggie back.

NEW VALUES

by Kuppenheimer

Already famous for maximum fabric quality, style and tailoring per dollar, Kuppenheimer again this season sets new high levels in value-giving. Strong Casimeres, worsteds faced at $40, pure worsteds at $45 and the famous, fleecy Duronap Duffels overcoat at $50 are but random examples. Kuppenheimer resources and volume make these values possible.
