Carnegie Foundation says of 102 of the 120 institutions investigated. The report defines subsidy as "any assistance, favor, gift, award, scholarship, or concession, direct or indirect, which advantages an athlete because of his athletic ability or reputation and which sets him apart from his fellows in the undergraduate body." It further states that "college athletes are subsidized through four main instrumentalities: jobs, loans, scholarships, and miscellaneous assistance." Harvard was kept off the clean list because it gave a few concessions only to athletes. Here there are several concessions that are reserved for athletes only and usually they are the best concessions that are offered. However we believe that our athletes should be given a few advantages such as these. They work out every day and do not have the time to work at other jobs. They are able to work their concessions at night or divide the concession between men that take part in different sports and work it in the season they are not in competition.

Even if a school does not give board and room to its players, do you think that a man would endure the pounding, the punishment, the grind of training, for this mere pitance unless he loved the rough and tumble game? One of the greatest factors toward the recruiting and subsidizing athletes is the alumni and this is one branch that can never be controlled because their work can be carried on under cover. Yes, we too would like to read the report of an investigation of athletic conditions of Texas colleges. An article will appear in the next issue of the Battalion concerning how S. W. C. schools fared with the other institutions that were investigated.

by a score of 21-38. Texas defeated the Owls who are supposed to have a strong team. Coach Anderson's crack overland team will meet them on the Rice course Friday.

If there is another better guard in the conference than Chuck Richter he should be placed on the All-American team. Chuck has been playing his position this year much better than he did last year when he received mention for the mythical honor, and if any man deserves that honor, this year this fighting Aggie linesman should get first call. Mills sparkled for the Aggie backfield a few times, but the wet field hindered him as it did the other Aggie ball toters. Conover continued to get off his good kicks and Zarafontis would have run his average up had it not been for two hard-luck boots.

AGGIES DUE TO WIN

held to the meagre margin of two touchdowns by the Rice gridsters.

Saturday's game at Houston will be the fourteenth meeting of the Aggies and Owls on the gridiron since 1914. The Aggies have won 9 of the 13 preceding contests while the Owls took three and held A. and M. to a 7-7 tie in the other. Only twice in the entire list of 13 games has the margin of victory been wider than three touchdowns and in a majority of the games the difference in the scores of the victors and the vanquished was even less.

Following is a record of A. and M.-Rice games since 1914:

1914, Aggies 32.....	Rice 7
1915, Aggies 0.....	Rice 7
1916, Aggies 0.....	Rice 20
1917, Aggies 10.....	Rice 0
1918, No game.
1919, No game.
1920, Aggies 7.....	Rice 0
1921, Aggies 7.....	Rice 7
1922, Aggies 24.....	Rice 0
1923, Aggies 6.....	Rice 7
1924, Aggies 13.....	Rice 6
1925, Aggies 17.....	Rice 0
1926, Aggies 20.....	Rice 0
1927, Aggies 14.....	Rice 0
1928, Aggies 19.....	Rice 0

INTRAMURALS

to play more than they would have had not the two class idea been instituted. The League champions will be announced in the next issue of the Battalion and the time for the playing of these contests will also be announced.

Speedball is progressing very well, though not enough Freshmen are playing this sport. Last year Company A lost its first game in the finals since Speedball was introduced at this school, and as yet have not won a game this season.

The infantry seems to be the least interested in intramurals this year although there are a few managers that have been getting their men to the contests. One of the surprising things noted was that Company F had not forfeited a game of any kind in three years, yet have
