Former Eng. Prof
Soph at Tulane

The following excerpt from a fun edition of the "Tulane Hulabaloo" will be appreciated by members of the junior and senior classes at A. and M. since its subject is none other than our erstwhile English professor, Richard (Jelly) Stephenson, member of the English department at Tulane, and apparently doing quite well since he is now referred to as a "grown-up sophomore."

Richard Stephenson
Dicky Stephenson's bones
Crumbled quite to the core,
And nought now remains
Of his Mercury Lore;
While his soul has departed
From these scenes of yore,
For a Hell reserved
For the Grownup Sophomore.

over the Engineers' eyes and walked away with the game, 12-0. Sudderth's smashing drives and the entire well-functioning Composite machine just could not be stopped. The Composites have been fighting lately and now that they are in a position to cop the title or a part of it will be depended upon to give their last next week.

SPRING BASKETBALL

cadets.

Coach Ried has been nosing around for the past two months for future basketball players and any one that has been asked to come out for the practice should do so. Also any one that wishes to report is urged to see Coach Reid at once and draw equipment at once. It takes time to make basketball players and Coach Reid is beginning at the bottom. There are many men who have never tried for the Fish or Varsity team that are as good as many of the present Varsity men and Coach Reid wishes to find these men. Anyone can report. Fish are especially urged to come out.
