O. HENRY HAD YELLOW STREAK

NEW YORK—(IP)—That William S. Porter, who wrote under the pen name, O. Henry, was known to have a "yellow streak," is the statement made here recently by Miss Blanche Colton Williams, head of the English department at Hunter College, who is a short story critic, and who annually conducts the O. Henry Memorial short Story Contest.

Flag Pole Furnishes Annual Excitement

Each year for reasons varying from revolutions to weak ropes, the rope on the flag pole has to be replaced. This year the spectacle occurred a little earlier than usual, for sometime during Friday afternoon, the flag dropped to the ground because the rope just could not stand the strain.

G. G. Commons, A Company, Infantry, and hailing from Mercedes, proved to be the hero of the day, last Sunday afternoon when he accomplished what more than several had tried to do. With virtually no hesitation, he climbed to the top of the flag pole and replaced the old rope with a small steel cable. It is believed that his fee was five dollars.

Morality for Own Sake Out of Vogue

Bryn Mawr, Pa.—(IP)—Morality for its own sake is no longer in vogue, believes Dr. Hornell Hart, professor of social economy at Bryn Mawr College here. Of this he says:

"We are through with the worship of any arbitrary ideal. Let us disavow, frankly and emphatically, some of the old conceptions. Morality for its own sake has no claim upon us.

"Orderliness, obedience, conformity, chastity, monogamy—such ideals are valid only if they promote deeper and more vital values—if they call out to the full possibilities of the self, only if they make for rich, intense, growing, creative experience.

"The question should be, not 'how can we prevent people from having sex experience not consistent with traditional morals?' but 'how can we aid people who seek fulfillment of personality to establish in their own lives those patterns of sex behavior which will bring to them and their associates the fullest and richest experience?'"

THREATEN DEATH FOR PROF. WHO TAUGHT DAUGHTER EVOLUTION

Evanston, Ill.—(IP)—A father grieving over the death of his co-ed daughter several years ago, was arrested here for threatening the life of a Northwestern University professor because he taught the girl some evolutionary theories.

Professor Ernest Laurer asked the arrest of A. J. Robinson, of Brookfield, Ill., charging that the latter threatened to shoot him. In court here Robinson admitted that he had planned to kill the professor.

"My daughter, Roslyn, attended Professor Laurer's class in history five years ago," he said. "He taught her the theory of evolution and that changed her ideas on the whole matter of religion. She began to brood over it, and that led to a nervous breakdown and death."

After Robinson had promised to make no further attempt at molesting the professor, he was released.

READ FADED MANUSCRIPTS

London, Eng.—(IP)—The British Museum has received from an American college professor who would not reveal his name for publication, an ultra-violet fluorescence cabinet for use in detecting obliterated writings on ancient manuscripts.

Many old manuscripts now owned were once parchments on which the writing had faded, and because of the scarcity of parchment, had been used over again.

Orange, N. J., and East Orange, N. J., have different laws about Sunday movies. A theater owner whose building is located on the dividing line between the two cities ropes off the East Orange side of his auditorium, and thereby obeys the law in that city, while he puts on his Sunday movies in the Orange side of the theater.

THE Neolithic men were unquestionably a smart people. In the heart of the Umbrella Age they figured out that strolling in the rain would be fun if you only didn't get wet. Nothing more was done about it, though, until 1836, when Tower started making slickers. We're good at it now, if we do say it.

Fish Brand Slickers, roomy, well-cut, long-wearing, are sold everywhere, in a wide range of models, weights and colors, for men and others. Your slicker will soon pay for itself in reduced taxi and pressing bills. Look for the fish on the label. A. J. Tower Company, 24 Simmons Street, Boston, Massachusetts.
