

MEMORY'S

Verse By G. M. Wrenn

I found her in the blush of youth,
A violet with a hanging head,
I loved her for her innocence;
A love that is not dead.

Then the languishing lily maid,
Willowy, fragile, and slim;
Bending with grace to the gusts of my love,
Compliant with every whim.

