Frog Promises Band Members Trouble If They Ever Meet Artillery in War

Every year the poor "frog" comes in for his share of misery and woe. Also, every year there is an unusual instance which cannot be overlooked. This one is on a luckless frog in the artillery.

Just before retreat a few nights ago a group of freshmen were in a room in Milner hall holding a small "bull session". When first call for retreat sounded all the fish jumped up and ran out of the room with the frog right behind. He was immediately commanded to grab his hat and beat it out to formation. But unfortunately his hat was among the missing. High and low he searched but to no avail. And then he began thinking. It paid, for the hat was discovered under the raincoat on the bed. At last with anxious eyes he burst from the hall, and began a second search—this time for his battery.

But alas, it had disappeared.

After scanning military walk for the sight of his comrades, he was gruffly told to stand at attention and salute upon hearing the notes of the bugle. A rebel in a revolutionary army could have put up a better salute than the one this frog displayed. Realizing that he had better get in somewhere in order to eat supper, he fell in with the band. On entering the mess hall he wondered at the gruff treatment he was receiving, but suddenly discovered something unaccountable—their hat cords were brown, and his red. After a meal that was more torment than nourishment, due to outside interference, he returned to Milner hall and was heard to say to an upperclassman: "Mister, if we ever get in a fight with that bunch that lives across the street, there sure is some guys I'm gonna get".

A monument is to be erected at Pau, France, to commemorate the 22nd anniversary of the first airplane flight ever made there by Wilbur Wright.

Contemplate School For Firemen At A & M

A permanent training school for Texas firemen to be conducted at A & M is contemplated in a bill just introduced in the State Legislature by Senator C. S. Gainer of Bryan. The proposed school, requested by the State Firemen's Association, would offer short course instruction in all the phases of fire fighting every three months under the supervision of experienced chiefs and drill-masters of Texas and other states.

A firemen's short course conducted at the college last spring, which was attended by more than 200 firemen from 79 cities in the state developed pronounced sentiment for a regular training school.

Professor H. R. Brayton, of the department of chemistry and chemical engineering of the college, who directed the firemen's short course last spring, states that a training school as proposed would make possible the development of a uniform system of training and drill evolutions in all cities of the state. The representative of each local fire department in the state who attended would be expected to repeat in his local department the training received at the school.

As he enters his 73rd year, former Kaiser Wilhelm II is interested in aviation, theology, archeology and the so-called "war-guilt" question.

When a thief attempted to hold-up John Shepard, Springfield, Mo., hot tamale salesman, Shepard rubbed some of his wares in the gunman's eyes, whereupon the bandit screamed and made tracks.
