

Four Hours' Sleep Is Enough, Doctor Thinks

ROCHESTER, Minn.—The average man sleeps entirely too much, and four hours sleep each night is a plenty, according to Dr. Wilson A. Allen, of Rochester, who says he has not slept for more than four hours out of the 24 in 58 years.

Since he celebrated his 97th birthday the other day, his argument was not disputed by reporters who like to spend a good share of their time snoozing at the police station.

The doctor recommends the four hours sleep for business and professional men. Those who work with their bodies may need more, he admits.

A and M students as a whole—do not possess acute powers of observation and therefore there may be many who have not noticed the many improvements being made on the campus by the Buildings and Grounds Dept. We have reference to the shrubs and hedges being set out around the buildings. It will be left to the students—as to the degree of benefit which will be gained by these plans of campus beautification. As a general rule, and quite in keeping with our he-man complex, we tend to thwart all such progress movements by carelessness and lack of pride in the beauty of our surroundings. Ivy, tall, old trees, and hedges—bespeak of age and with age comes the increase in actual value. If a building is covered with vines or surrounded with green-stuff to cover its bareness and soften its sharp corners, the on-looker is at once impressed by its command of respect, its peaceful atmosphere. Although it seems sacrilegious—at times to praise a rival, we think it not out of place here to call your attention to the respect commanded by Rice Institute's beautiful campus. This institution has quite a reputation for its high scholastic rating and surely such an outward appearance does anything but detract from this envious record.

We must be truthful—though it may hurt. Our campus is void of any real artistic landscaping, except, perhaps, the few square yards immediately around the main building and a would-be sunken garden between two of the dormitories. This is so, chiefly, we think, because the students themselves, will not attempt to preserve the efforts of the college authorities by exercising even the ordinary amount of care.

Visitors generally commend—the appearance of the school. Think what a pleasant impression A and M would present them if it possessed half the beauty it should rightfully have. All the detractive ugliness would be covered by a soft blanket of green in much the same way we hide our ill-doings from them by the assumption of an angelic map.

The third American planetarium is to be erected in Los Angeles. It will cost $750,000, and will be part of the Hall of Science to be erected on Mount Hollywood in Griffin Park, near the open-air Greek theater.

SHOW TALK

By Phillip John

Wednesday, Assembly Hall—"Min and Bill."

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Palace—"Stolen Heaven."

Saturday, Assembly Hall—"The Spoilers."

Saturday preview, and Monday, Palace—"The Easiest Way."

Rating: 1-Fair; 2-Good; 3-Excellent.

"Min and Bill," features two of the best actors on the screen, Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery. It is a tragic water-front story, spiced with inimitable comedy, and an excellent vehicle for this new team of stars.—2.

Nancy Carroll's new picture, "Stolen Heaven," is a romantic story of two young folks, who try to steal a little paradise on twenty thousand stolen dollars. Phillips Holmes, star of "Her Man," is Nancy's leading man.—2.

With this picture is featured an excellent three reel comedy, Laurel and Hardy in "Chickens Come Home."—3.

"The Spoilers," based on Rex Beach's novel, tells the story of the law versus the gold miners. This is red meat melodrama, packed with action and interest. An all-star cast is featured in this production: Gary Cooper, Kay Johnson, Betty Compson, William Boyd, and Slim Summerville.—2.

Clara Bow's new picture, "No Limit," is the story of a flirtatious ushurlette, who smiles at a sailor, and he gives her a Rolls Royce and the keys to his gambling house, but she becomes involved in a plot even more interesting than the Daisy DeVoe type.—2.

"The Easiest Way," Constance Bennett's new picture, is the old story of a poor girl who wanted pretty things, and got them, from a very rich man, but no wedding ring. The theme of the story is of the modern type, sophisticated and frank. The picture is very well directed, and has an excellent cast: Constance Bennett, Adolphe Menjou, Anita Page and Robert Montgomery.

Says Moon Only 100 Miles Away From Earth

CLEVELAND.—Gustav F. Ebbing, of Cleveland, who failed in his injunction suit to keep President Hoover from taking office in 1929, and author of a book proving—to his satisfaction—that the world is not a globe but rather that we live on the inside of a big hole in solid space, now has a new idea for reaching the moon.

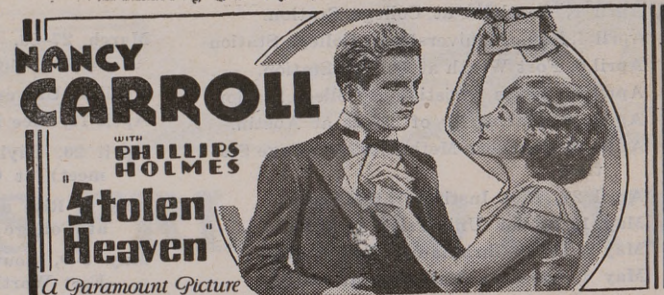

According to Ebbing's theory, all stars, the moon and the sun are in the center of this fairly small vacant space, and the way to get to China quickest is to fly straight up.

To encourage aviators to fly to the moon, which he says is less than 100 miles away, Ebbing would have someone give $5,000 for every mile above the eight-mile limit flown by an aviator.

Some day, he claims, trips will be made to the moon within a few minutes flying time.
