

New Band Uniform Given Approval By Junior Class

Approval of a new uniform of slacks for all members of the band to be worn by that organization next year when appearing in concerts, on the football field, and when making trips in a body, was given by the members of the junior class in a meeting yesterday. The change which would involve the use of a so called Senior's privilege, necessitated the approval of this year's junior class as they would be seniors next year, and have the power of deciding the issue.

The uniform will consist of slacks of the style worn on the campus now with a narrow white strip down the seam on the leg, a white leather Sam Browne belt, with one or two shoulder straps, and possibly a white leather detachable chin strap. This uniform will make the band's appearance considerably improved, but was approved by the class only with the understanding that the slacks would not be worn by underclassmen except when appearing with the band in a body.

War March of the Texas Aggies

The blessing of offspring, however, is not completed by the mere begetting of them. But something else must be added, namely, the proper education of the offspring.—Pope Pius VI.

Periodicals Show Much Improvement

The academic editorial hour glass has almost run dry, and the time has come for another set of senior publications executives to give way to a new group rising from the ranks of the present junior class. With the publication of The Longhorn this week, the last of the seniors' work on student publications was completed.

The Texas Aggie Countryman senior editor and business manager were the first to give way, their positions being taken over by junior just before the last issue which appeared in April. Now the new editors of The Longhorn, The Battalion and The Technoscope have been selected and already are busy on plans for next year's publications.

The past two years have seen rapid advances in student publications, the climax being reached with the formation of the Student Publications Board several weeks ago. First, The Texas Aggie Countryman made its appearance in the early part of 1930, and was followed very shortly by the first edition of The Technoscope. Last fall The Battalion inaugurated its monthly feature number and also changed its

Hopkins Succeeds Sloan In M. S. Department

Major Samuel R. Hopkins of New Haven, Maryland, will succeed Major J. E. Sloan as professor of military science and tactics, orders from the War Department state. Major Hopkins is a native of Maryland, and a graduate of St. Johns College at Annapolis, Md. He will arrive here sometime in July or August to take charge, filling the vacancy caused by the expiring term of office held by Major Sloan.

page size, makeup and news style considerably. The new Longhorn followed its lead and appeared this week with several distinctly new ideas and features.

Under the student publications council plan henceforth all will be operated on a group business plan. Editors will be selected as formerly, but the business or advertising managers will be named by the council business manager, J. E. Angell, formerly with the Denton Record-Chronicle, who holds this position.

Following an annual custom next week's Battalion will be published under the supervision of the junior staff members and editor-elect Claude M. Evans.

Pictures of the retiring editors and business managers appear elsewhere in this week's issue of the Battalion.

NIGHT AND A FAST TRACK!

A TRACK man will tell you that records are broken when the track is fast. Think of this setting—a cool evening, the stands overflowing, the whole spectacle brilliantly lighted with G-E floodlights, and a fast track—a record simply couldn't stand the "gaff."

Nighttime, when people naturally turn to diversion, is the logical time for a track meet. Lack of support will be a thing of the past. And just watch the athletic fund grow.

G-E floodlighting projectors, largely the development of college-trained men, are easily adapted to any occasion whether football, track, tennis, commencement, receptions, or plays. Efficient G-E illumination promotes athletics and builds school spirit.

The Battalion, published at A & M College, reports that the board of directors of that institution have expressed themselves as being in favor of making an appropriation for the purchase of a pipe organ to be installed where students and campus residents may enjoy it. However, as a sum of money sufficient to purchase such an instrument is not available at this time and it would be necessary for faculty members and students to provide additional money if the instrument is to be purchased in the near future. posthe
