TORONTO, Ont.—How far should the seeker after knowledge go? Not to the door of the brewery—is the answer of members of the W. C. T. U. when it reached their scandalized ears that the boys of a Toronto high school had been taken on a jaunt through a Toronto brewery—all in the name of alcohol as expressed in terms of chemistry.

The students were studying chemistry and it was felt that firsthand information would be useful in their quest of knowledge. The boys had not sampled the product.

Many citizens felt a tempest in a teapot or turmoil in a wine vat was being stirred up but some parents felt that there must be other ways of teaching chemistry. Trips through dairies, laundries and abattoirs might be all right but there was a savory difference about a brewery. They felt that educationalists were becoming illogical.

Seniors Cavalry Give Banquet

Cavalry Squadron seniors held their annual banquet honoring their regular army officers last Friday night in the Sbis Hall annex. Cadet Major Charles Herder, Jr., of Weimar served as toastmaster, and Major J. P. Wheeler and Captain I. G. Walker and H. B. Gibson were the guests of honor.

Major Wheeler was presented with a fitted traveling kit and Captains Gibson and Walker were given desk fountain pen by the Cavalry seniors as token of appreciation for their work with the cadet squadron during the past year.

Feeling that probably it was the last time they would be together as a group, the seniors and officers centered their conversation on the class history in general and the past summer camp in particular.

When Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the New York Zoological Park, wanted to get a huge cobra to Washington, D. C. for exhibition purposes, he carried the deadly reptile in a canvas bag with him, and kept it warm under the blankets of his pullman berth.

RESOLUTION

Whereas God, the Almighty Father, in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call from this life, Mrs. Jennie Dietz, mother of our friend and classmate, Thomas Dietz.

Be it resolved that: The senior class of the A & M College of Texas in behalf of the members of the student body having shared in the joys and successes of our friend and classmate do condole and sympathize with him in his bereavement.

RAY WALKER,
Class President.
