

Girls vote for PIPES (for men!)

ASK any girl you know to name her favorite smoke—for men! Ten to one she'll say a pipe!

She's discovered—trust her bright little eyes—that it's the BIG men, on the campus and off, who welcome the mental stimulation and relaxation they get from this real man's smoke.

And if she's very wise in the ways of smokers, she'll go one better than that. She'll tell you the men who know, smoke Edgeworth!

No two ways about it, you do get a doubly satisfying smoke when you fill up your pipe with this famous old blend. It's a happy combination of choice burleys—cut long to give you a cool, slow-burning smoke. And its mellow flavor and rich aromahavemade Edgeworth the favorite pipe tobacco on 42 out of 50 campuses.

Help yourself to a pipeful next time someone pulls Edgeworth out of his pocket. Pick up the familiar blue tin yourself at any good tobacco stand. Or for a special free sample packet write to Larus & Bro. Co., 105 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va.

EDGEWORTH SMOKING TOBACCO

Edgeworth is a blend of fine old burleys, with its natural savor enhanced by Edgeworth's distinctive and exclusive elevation process. Buy Edgeworth anywhere in two forms—Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed and Edgeworth Plug Slice. All sizes, 15¢ pocket package to $1.50 pound humidior tin.

Lie Detector Used To Test Poker Player

(Intercollegiate Press) Evanston, Ill.—A little black box with three socket plugs and three needles which record respiration, pulse and blood pressure may take the place of the short rubber hose and the tough fists of detectives in the securing of confessions of criminals.

The lie detector, or Polygraph, as it is officially named, is the product of Dr. Leonarde Keeler of the scientific crime detection laboratories of Northwestern University.

Dr. Keeler recently demonstrated that the detector is able even to see beyond the most amazing poker face. He took as a subject a card player of experience, asked him to select one from a group of ten cards, and then answer "no," to all question as to whether this was the card he had chosen. The subject did as commanded, and when the card appeared which he had chosen he said, "No." The polygraph jumped. Dr. Keeler, after going through the ten, pointed out the one chosen. "No," said the subject again, and the polygraph gave even a worse jump.

"I fear you were lying," said Dr. Keeler. "I was," said the subject. And the polygraph didn't jump that time.

Scholarship In Aviation Offered To Undergrads

Boeing Air School Announces Annual Contests For Scholarships In Four Aviation Courses.

With flying and ground school scholarships totalling $7,245 in cash value, a nationwide competition among college students for the Third Annual W. E. Boeing Aviation Scholarships offered at the Boeing School of Aeronautics, Oakland, Calif., was opened today.

The first prize award will be the full Boeing Master Pilot ground and flying scholarship covering 204 hours of flying and 924 hours of ground school instruction at the school. This course requires nine months for completion and its tuition value is $5,275. Second, third and fourth award winners are offered a choice of the Boeing Master Mechanic course, the Boeing Master Pilot ground course or the Boeing Private Pilot ground and flying course.

Freshmen Eligible

It was announced that any undergraduate student who will have completed one year of study in college by July 15, 1932, and who ranks scholastically in the upper one-third of his class, is eligible to compete for the Boeing scholarships. Members of the 1932 graduating class are also eligible.

Candidates for the scholarships will be required to prepare essays on one of the following subjects: Trends of Development in Air Transportation, Progress of Safety in Aviation, Trend of Airport Design and Development, Radio as an Aid to Aviation, Importance of Proper Coordination of Federal and State Laws Governing Air Transportation, Modern Aircraft Instruments, Design in Relation to Speed of Aircraft.

Woods To Judge

Essays will be judged by a National Committee of Award composed of prominent educators and leaders in the aeronautical industry, the chairman of which will be Dr. Baldwin M. Woods, head of the department of mechanical engineering at the University of California. The competition closes May 15, 1932.

The Boeing School of Aeronautics, recognized as one of the outstanding flying schools in the United States, is affiliated with United Air Lines, world's largest air transportation system operating transcontinental and western mail-passenger airways. Also allied with the Boeing School of Aeronautics is the Boeing Airplane Company of Seattle, one of the largest airplane factories in the world.

Further information on the Third Annual W. E. Boeing Scholarship competition may be obtained from the administrative office of the college or from the Boeing School of Aeronautics, Oakland, California.

Track Man Runs Down Two Gunmen After Robbery

(Intercollegiate Press) Quincy, Ill.—When a 16-year-old youth held up a filling station here he did not reckon with the fact that one of the bystanders was a world-famous runner.

Morgan Taylor, former Grinnell College athlete and champion of the 400-mete hurdles in the Olympic Games, led two other witnesses of the holdup in pursuit of the youth and his gunman companion. He caught the robber in front of City Hall, and knocked his gun from his hand, holding him for police.

Trustees of Williams College have agreed to establish for 100 years two new annual scholarships to be named "A Dog's Tale," because they will be supported by the sale of the first editions of a pamphlet containing Mark Twain's story by that name, presented to the college by an alumnus, Irving Slee Underhill, a collector of rare copies of Mar Twain's works.

TEXAS—

White over the Longhorns but also the first time an Aggie team had ever scored on the "Varsity." The Aggies then claimed the championship of the south since Texas had defeated Sewanee, who in turn was victorious over Vanderbilt.

But the Maroon and White Supremacy was short lived when they failed to win from the "Varsity" gridders again in 1909. A team boasting such stars as "Charlie" Deware, "Choc" Kelly, "Mike" Balenti, and "Dutch" Hohn trampled the Steers in a sea of mud, in Houston, and sent them home beaten to the tune of 23-0 in the 1909 game. Not satisfied with the outcome of this affair the Texas boys called for a "new deal" and two week later the teams resumed warfare, this time in Austin, and the Aggies again reigned supreme when the game ended. However, the latter game was much more fiercely fought and the Aggie emerged victors by only one touchdown. So intense had become the rivalry between the two student bodies, that the University students posted a sign which read "Once in Seven years." The Aggies, not to be outdone, captured the sign and repainted it to read, "Twice in two weeks." The following year again found the Aggies with a great team and the Longhorns went down under a 14-8 defeat, which ran the winning streak of the Maroon and White to three games, a record which stands today as the longest either team can boast since Texas' long series of victories was wrecked in 1909.

Relations Severed Second Time
The Aggies had a great team in 1911, and were confident of downing the Longhorns for the fourth consecutive time, but a mediocre Orange and White eleven rose to great heights and won the game 6-0. It was then that rivalry between the two student bodies again became so intense that it was deemed wise to sever athletic relations between the schools.

The teams did not meet again until 1915, when the first game was played on Kyle field. In the fray "Rip" Colline, "Fannie" Coleman, and Captain Bennie Garrity tore through the mighty Texas line, which boasted such stars as "Pig" Dittmar, Paul and Bob Simmons and "Pete" Edmond, and started the Kyle field tradition, with at 13-0 triumph. The rivalry between the two institutions then became one of friendliness, with the exception of when the game is on, and in the long list of struggles that have followed only once has each team won on the opposing teams home ground.

Ample proof of the fight displayed by the two teams when playing "in their own back yard" are the results of battles such as those in 1920, '21, '25 and '29. The 1920 season found the Aggie machine having one of the most successful in its history, while the best the Longhorns could offer was a crew of fighting mediocre ball players. The Aggies entered the game with what might be called a perfect record, having downed every opponent without a single point being scored by the latter. Scene of the affair was in Austin and the Aggies were rank favorites when the game began. They upheld their reputation by scoring first by way of a field goal when the Steer line proved to be virtually impregnable, but with the game apparently won until the last minute of play, the Longhorns suddenly came to life and drove over the Maroon and White goal line, converted for the extra point and ruined a perfect season for the Aggies.

Aggies Invincible on Kyle Field
Then the 1921 season was on of Texas University's greatest, their team being "dubbed" the "wonder team." That mighty band of gridiron warriors came to College Station, assured that they would "win in a walk," but when the game ended everyone was "wondering," why it ended in a scoreless deadlock. In 1925 neither team was given much advantage, since both were undefeated and were reputed to be of approximately equal strength, some called it a toss-up affair. But the game had not progressed far when it could easily be seen as to which team was the superior, on that day, and which way the game would go. It was in this game that the Aggies handed the Longhorns their worst setback ever administered them on Thanksgiving day, when the final score read A & M 28-Texas 0. It was in this game that Joel Hunt, the Southwest's greatest back; and "Siki" Sykes, all-conference Aggie end, embarked on their brilliant careers. The last so-called upset was in 1929, when a Texas team rated two touchdowns better than A & M was roundly outplayed on Kyle field and sent home with a 13-0 defeat.

Following is an all-time record of the Turkey Day battles:

Hillel Club Plans Christmas Program

Plans for a banquet to be held between the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays were discussed at a regular meeting of the Hillel Club, Sunday. At the same meeting excellent talks were given by E. Levy and L. Finkelstein on articles appearing in current magazines which were followed by impromptu speeches by members of the club. Regular business of the club was then discussed and it was decided that a speaker should be invited to speak to the club at the next regular meeting, Sunday, December 11th.

Primitive societies are the most happy because they can always solve their social problems, according to Professor Alfred R. Radcliffe-Brown of the department of anthropology at the University of Sydney Australia. Civilized manners and codes do not allow ready solutions for new social problems, he said.
