PREXY

The Battalion in behalf of the student body expresses its regret for the present illness of Dr. Walton. Although he is not in a serious condition Dr. Walton is still confined to the hospital in Bryan and will probably not be sufficiently recovered to return to his office for several days.

His recent strenuous activity in behalf of the college climaxed by an especially busy week-end so weakened him that Dr. Walton was not able to resist an attack of erysipelas and was forced to seek medical attention.

Every member of the student body and the college staff is anxiously hoping for, and anticipating his speedy recovery and his return to his duties at the college.

IDLE RUMORS

Twitter, twitter, girls! I'm all aflutter! Can you imagine—From sunny San Antonio comes rumors of a blue-footed cadet gone society. The unfortunate lad, who came under the evil sniping eye is one "Gloomy" Gus Froebel, who spent most of his time during the holidays attending Tango Teas at the Gunter Hotel. They tell us that when "Gloomy" dons the old patent leathers and bell bottom pants he can do that Latin American black bottom in such a manner as to cause a swashbuckling-burro-riding Don Juan to turn green with envy. Yeah, lads, all the dark eyed maidens' hearts start fluttering when Senior Goose twists his bulky torso to the lilting rhythm of the castanets. After reading this he probably tango to anymore of the tea orgies without feeling remorseful.

And while we're dwelling on persons named Goose, let us tell you about the strange case of A. J. "Goose" Jennings. While on the train enroute to the game, old G' was trying to catch up on the sleep he has missed by making breakfast this year. He was rudely awakened from the arms of Morpheus by the conductor who demanded a ticket. Not yet conscious of his surroundings, Audrey John produced his ticket to the football game. Said the conductor, "This ticket's no good." Whereupon A. J. replied as he rubbed the sand from his eyes, "Hell it ain't! It's on the fifty yard line." Ticket or leave it, that's the way we heard it.

And to follow our train of related thoughts, we take up the thread of narration to relate of the love of two military men for

Operator for Amateur Radio Station Argues With President's Son

SEATTLE, Wash.—(IP)—Eugene Erckenbrack, undergraduate at the University of Washington, is happy over the presidential election. He spent most of his time before election day campaigning for Roosevelt over his amateur radio station W7VY.

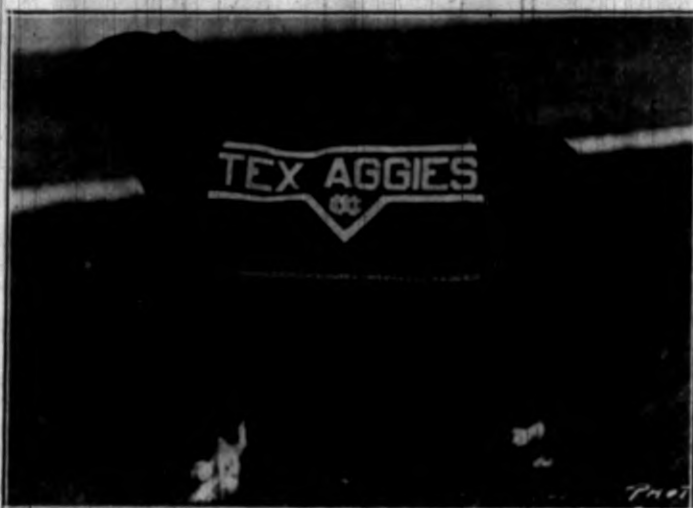

Opening his broadcast a couple of nights before the election, he recounts, he started his "voice for Roosevelt" plea, then signed off to pick up replies, arguments, and maybe converts.

Within a few minutes in came station W6ZH of Palo Alto, Calif., and Erckenbrack began his argument.

His listener broke in and suggested: "You better look up my name in the call book."

Erckenbrack did. He found it listed to Herbert Hoover, Jr.

CAMPUS PERSONALITIES

"REVEILLE", '35

The Campus Personalities Column nominates Miss Corporal Reveille, '35, for All Southwest Conference mascot for the season 1932.

Reveille, as just a pup, first appeared on the campus last Fall, seemingly from out of the "nowhere." Up to this point her life history is unknown. She was first viewed early one cold morning as the strains of reveille floated over a sleeping campus; hence, her adopted name was derived. First she took up her habitation in "Old Foster" with the band, and marched to meals with the corps, escorting the drum major. She ate her first meal here in the Mess Hall with the corps and has continued to do so, after she tramped from hall to hall making friends wherever she went in her amiable way. Now she seems to be everywhere on the campus at the same time.

During the Christmas holidays last year, she was taken up by the authorities of the Veterinary Hospital for not having a vaccination tag. Students demanded that she be treated like a real resident, so she was vaccinated and again given her freedom.

Reveille was in attendance during the Summer session of school and often "hi-wade" to and from Bryan in company with students. She has been an untiring student and has not left the campus since her arrival here except for periods of one or two days.

Cheer Leader Only Casualty of Game

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(IP)—It may be necessary before this season is out to revise the rules of football to make the game safer for cheer leaders.

Claude Miller, University of Illinois cheer leader, was the only casualty of the Indiana-Illinois game this year. He went to a hospital with a head injury after he attempted a back flip during one of his maneuvers. His timing was off and he fell, striking his head on the ground. A slight concussion was the diagnosis.

A New York judge has ruled that while a golf player is not responsible for injuries to his own caddy from flying golf balls, he is responsible for such injuries to the caddies of other players, the principle being that the caddy knows fairly well where the ball of his player is headed, for, but is not supposed to keep track of what other players are doing on the links.
