Wednesday night—Arrowsmith.
A romantic drama of kingdoms, masquerades, and assassins—Noel Coward's drama, "Tonight is Ours" is made into a talkie. Frederic March is a commoner who mimics a cat in that he looks at a queen and gets away with it. An altogether impossible plot if I know my revolutionaries but none the less dramatic. And when did any playwright concern himself with possibilities when a nicely new dramatic angle could be introduced?

Cast: Claudette Colbert, Frederic March, Alison Skipworth, Arthur Byron, and Paul Cavanaugh.

Lee Tracy, a most successful actor in portraying flashy characters, breezes around giving us the low-down on ballyhoo methods in "The Half-Naked Truth." Lee builds up a carnival dancer until she merits the big time. True to life she high-hats her maker after she receives her big contracts. Undazzled and hardly disappointed, he proceeds to unmake her by building up another dancer. Clever comedy angles and a funny plot.

Cast: Lupe Velez, Lee Tracy, Eugene Palette, and Frank Morgan.

From chasing Sandino in Nicaragua to rum running by airplanes, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s new picture, "Parachute Jumper" leads him a merry chase. From the title, an oldtimer would expect to see the Jr.'s Dad walking camel-backs on airplanes, but the show is actually Doug, Jr.'s venture into McLaglen-Lowe quip and counter-quiping with Frank McHugh, pull-lenty thrills according to Mr. Advance Dope.

Cast: Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Frank McHugh, Bette Davis, Claire Dodd, Sheila Terry, and Leo Carrillo.

Based on the famous Flaubert novel, "Madame Bovary," "Unholy Love," is hardly the classic that the original novel is, but for lurid love scenes which are hardly considered illicit any more, it is on a basis with any of the super-sex cinemas. The picture turns out to be an unfaithful wife tragedy with the muchly expected ending.

Cast: H. B. Warner, Lila Lee, Lyle Talbot, and Ivan Lebedeff.

"Arrowsmith," a film picturization of Sinclair Lewis' most popular novel, falls in line with Lewis' original intention. Adhering closely to the original plot, the picture is quite successful for those who have read the book, but leaves the unfamiliar in doubt. Excellent acting on the part of Ronald Colman and Helen Hayes.

well as in the South, and his appointment is being urged in all other sections of the Nation as well.

President Walton "is familiar with all phases of agricultural development. He has served as county agent, district agent, director of extension and for several years as president of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, and has acquired nation-wide recognition and has had practical as well as technical training in the problems of agriculture."

President Walton first became connected with A and M as county agent of the Extension Service in 1908 in the first days of farm demonstration work in the United States. He became district agent over thirty East Texas counties in 1911 and on Jan. 1, 1916, was named state agent with headquarters at College Station. He became assistant director of the Extension service in 1917 and director in 1918. In 1925 he was elected president of the college.

His ability as a leader has received national recognition. In 1922 he was elected chairman of the National Directors of Extension Organization. He was made a member of the National Committee of Extension Organization and Policy in 1921. In 1922, when the National Office of Extension Work in the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Washington was created, he was tendered the position of director by Secretary of Agriculture Henry C. Wallace. He declined be-

STANSEL SINKS FREE THROW TO DEFEAT BRUINS

Tight Defensive Work Featured Rather Than Flashy Offensive in Colorless Game At Waco.

A spiritless offense almost cost John Reid's Texas Aggies a defeat at the hands of a weak Baylor team, when the two quints met in Waco last Saturday night. Neither team forged very far into the lead during the entire affray, and the score was tied eighteen-all near the close of the contest when Stansel converted a free shot into victory for the Aggies. Weatherby sacrificed a golden opportunity to fasten a win onto a long string of Bruin defeats when he muffed two free throws in the final period.

Tight defensive play was featured in sharp contrast to listless offensive with neither team being cause of his interest in educational matters in Texas.

Under President Walton, A and M College has taken marked strides in increased student body, wider and more comprehensive curricula, improved physical plant and closer contact with the people that it serves.

Along the Sidelines

By R. L. WILLIAMS

Uncle Billy Ditch, "grand old man of Southwestern baseball" predicts that Texas, A and M., and T.C.U. will be the strongest in the coming race for diamond supremacy. Texas and A and M will play sixteen baseball games, according to the schedule. All other conference teams call for lighter schedules and Arkansas is not entering a team in the contest.

Baylor made eight field goals but failed to make the gift shots when they needed them badly. The Aggie able to score freely. Joe Moody, Aggie captain, was held to only two field goals by the Baylor guards and was able to garner only 9 counters enabling himself to enter a three-way tie with Parks and Barnett for scoring honors. Jocko Roberts was outstanding in defensive work for the Farmers, while Merka and Stansel marked up five points apiece to contribute to the Aggie score. The diminutive Stansel who sank the winning shots in this game was also the one who led in the scoring sprint made by the Aggies close to the end of the Steer-Aggie match two weeks ago.

gies made only five field goals, but unlike last season, they cashed in on their free shots. As a result they won the game.

ETHERIZED GIRL
floats in air

ILLUSION:
This very old illusion was invented by Indian fakirs. The secret was unearthed in 1849 by the great magician, Robert-Houdin. At that time, ether had just been discovered, and little was known about it. Houdin claimed that he had discovered that this new anesthetic could make people light as air. To prove it, he caused the subject to rise into the air and float apparently suspended. He passed a hoop around the body to show there were no wires or supports.

EXPLANATION:
There are many, many explanations for this old trick. One is that the girl wears a concealed harness, which ends in a socket between her shoulder blades. This is attached to a piston below the stage. The piston is pushed up from below, causing her to rise in the air. The piston is invisible, because it is covered with mirrors which reflect surrounding draperies, similar to the background. The magician can pass the hoop over her body because it is cut in one place. It can be pulled apart for a second when it passes the piston.

It's fun to be fooled —
...it's more fun to KNOW

Another "magic show" is cigarette advertising. One of its greatest tricks is the illusion that cigarettes can be made miraculously "MILD" through manufacturing methods. THE EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes today are made in modern sanitary factories with up-to-date machinery. All are heat treated—some more intensively than others, because raw, inferior tobaccos require more intensive treatment than choice, ripe tobaccos. The real difference comes in the tobaccos that are used. The better the tobacco, the milder it is. It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

This is why Camels are so mild. This is why Camels have given more pleasure to more people than any other cigarette ever made. It's the secret of Camels' rich "bouquet" ...their cool flavor...their non-irritating mildness. All the natural, ripe goodness of Camel's tobacco is kept fresh for you by the famous air-tight, welded Humidor Pack. Don't remove it.
