CAMPUS PEOPLE COMPLAIN

The charge in military law which reads in part, "guilty of conduct unbecoming to an officer and a gentleman" is regarded by those whom it touches as a most humiliating and disgraceful one. Since we are all embryonic officers, so to speak, and let us hope, gentlemen, we are certainly subject to the same standard of conduct. We hardly need be told, just reminded, that swearing in the presence of women is a strong violation of the code of an officer and a gentleman.

Recently several families living on the campus and almost under the eaves of the dormitories, have found it necessary to complain of loud swearing in the halls. College employees, of which the greater portion are faculty members, living in houses provided them by the college have the distinct disadvantage of being compelled to more or less share the privacy of their hearth with others. Are we, as men, going to continue to take advantage of a situation that is unfavorable to others? Are we going to continue to force wives and children to listen to strong language?

The use of profanity on the slightest provocation, or no provocation at all, is a convincing admission of weakness. A man who cannot control his temper and his tongue is no man at all. Our blood would boil if our mothers and sisters were forced to listen to cursing and loud swearing, shouldn't we show others the same consideration we ourselves deem our just right?

Let's call it thoughtlessness and carefully remember to think hereafter.

R F C AID FOR STUDENTS.

President Robert M. Hutchins, of the University of Chicago, is the latest to join that group of energetic advocates for loans from Reconstruction Finance Corporation to needy students. Daily the idea seems to be gaining friends among educators.

The proposal has its sound points. Students in its educational institutions are among the country's best investments. For more of the nation's energetic and ambitious young people to be fitted for specialized work would be national insurance against future difficulties such as the ones through which we are passing.

Student loans aren't a new thing. They have been very successful wherever tried. The recipients of these financial aids have added incentive to work hard for self betterment and few are the cases in which this has not been found. The students are considered good risks for they invariably look forward to the time when they can pay back their benefactors, and their training usually equips them so that this is relatively soon after their graduation.

The R F C probably will want a demand on the part of the students themselves before installing such a program. It would be well for all college students to give some study to the plan as it is being developed in their interest.—Indiana Daily Student.

PASSING REVIEW—

to read the funnies—such men are hard to find because few can sympathize with every student regardless of his troubles and send him away feeling glad he dropped in.—No wonder all of the old boys are asking—Where is Mr. Andy?

ENTERTAINMENT—Ligon Smith and his Orchestra and Jimmie Jeffries seem to be doing right well at entertaining the student body over in the Assembly Hall with the added talents of Lois Nixon, Normi Norman, and the other entertainers—Good work, Mr. Cashion, on the booking of such a group of entertainers.

COUPON BOOKS—Dean Kyle has already thanked the student body for their splendid co-operation in buying the coupon books but let's go further and try to get every man to buy his coupon book because we're going to see nothing short of a championship if every thing continues as it is now and I can't see that there can be anything to stop them with the spirit that they played with last Saturday—make arrangements—down payments are accepted on the coupon books—pay for them as you can—see Mr. Hooker—believe you will regret it if you fail to, because we have aspirations for crowns in the conference this year other than football.

Courses In Graduate School Now Offered Students at U C L A

(By College News Service)
LOS ANGELES.—For the first time in its history, the University of California at Los Angeles is offering graduate work.

Opening of the graduate school this fall climaxes a long fight on the part of the local administration and supporters of the university to obtain authority and funds for a graduate school here. As a result graduate work will be offered by 12 departments, with a limit of 150 as the total number of graduate students this year. A general expansion of the work of the school is planned for future years.

Enrollment at U.C.L.A. this fall dropped slightly below figures for last year, but administration officials greeted this with optimism, pointing out that "last year's excessive enrollment (6400) was abnormal, because the lack of opportunity for employment tends to keep young men and women in school, especially in the public schools, and that this year, with the increasing opportunities for employment, we are merely returning to normal."

STUDENT EDITOR

A college editor should be a super-man endowed with a patience of Job, the editorial ability of Horace Greely, the managing and directing ability of Charles Schwab, the diplomacy of Woodrow Wilson and the judicial qualities of former Chief Justice Marshall; he needs the keen humor of Lincoln, the dignity and the philosophy of Socrates, the religion of John Wesley; he should have the literary ability of Shakespeare and the lack of conscience to perpetrate the atrocities of Amy Lowell.

In addition to these few qualifications he needs the physique of Jack Dempsey, the nerve of a hold-up man and Edison's ability to do without sleep. His brain should be so constituted that he could absorb the essentials of the 20-credit course by means of the barest perusal of the subjects therein contained and to pass the final exams with honors so that the faculty will respect him and allow him to remain in school.

He should be absolutely foreign to the needs of rest, sleep, eating, recreation, the love of society, the inclination for the glory of athletics, school activities, and love. Having these few abilities to qualify as a fairly competent editor, there is a possibility that he would not be hauled on the faculty carpet more than once a week and kicked by the student body more than once a day.—C. I. A.

—about Cigarettes

Of all the ways in which tobacco is used the cigarette
is the mildest form

YOU know, ever since the Indians found out the pleasure of smoking tobacco, there have been many ways of enjoying it.

But of all the ways in which tobacco is used, the cigarette is the mildest form.

Another thing—cigarettes
are about the most convenient smoke. All you have to do is strike a match.

Everything that money can buy and everything that science knows about is used to make Chesterfields.

The right home-grown tobaccos—seasoned with just enough aromatic Turkish

—are blended and cross-
blended the Chesterfield way.

Then the cigarettes are made right—firm, well-filled. Chesterfield uses the right kind of pure cigarette paper.

There are other good cigarettes, of course, but Chesterfield is *the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette

that tastes better.
Chesterfields satisfy—
we ask you to try them.*
