Rice Biologist Is Speaker At Meeting of Science Seminar

Dr. A. C. Chandler, professor of biology, Rice Institute, addressed the Science Seminar on the subject, "Some Aspects of Public Health in India", Monday evening at eight o'clock in the lecture room of the Physics Building.

Speaking with the knowledge gained from three years experience in India, Dr. Chandler ably held the attention of the audience. His talk dealt chiefly with the sanitary conditions now prevalent in regions around Calcutta.

"In the average Indian village," Dr. Chandler said, "conditions are not too bad." Water supplied in most towns is fairly safe to drink, and sewerage disposal systems are found in the European quarters of most cities, the speaker added.

The chief problem, Dr. Chandler pointed out, lies in forcing sanitary conditions upon the natives who habitually live in extremely congested districts.

The professor stressed the fact that the handling of foods is "carried on without any semblance of cleanliness."

PHI BETTA KAPPA KEY PREFERRED TO FOOTBALL LETTER

Columbia Fish Says "Sleep In Peace" Is Greatest Ambition After Four Years In Columbia.

New York (IP)—The freshmen men at Columbia College don't go so strong for "great big football men." As a matter of fact 236 out of 325 expressed their opinions in a questionnaire sent out by the Spectator, student newspaper, said they would much prefer to have a Phi Beta Kappa key to a football letter. Thirty-three admitted they would like to have both.

While 215 said they did not drink hard liquor, most of the men expressed a liking for 3.2. There were only 128 who smoked, of whom three smoked only cigars.

Asked what they intended to do after leaving Columbia, 52 said they intended to go to work, 51 to study medicine, 34 to enter law school and 24 to pursue other graduate study.

One frosh said he felt he would have accomplished his most cherished desire if, after four years of college, he could be allowed to "sleep in peace."

Of the lot, 121 said they were Republicans, 67 Democrats, 24 Socialists, twelve Communists and 79 were undecided on politics.

Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at the Palace: "Christopher Bean."

Another play revised to fit in to the cinema's requirements, this time with notable success. "Christopher Bean" is a show whose principle aim seems to be to tear down the wall of hypocrisy so prevalent in the characters of Puritanistic New Englanders. A typical New England family is taken for the main characters, and portrayed as the greed-hating, goodly people. Then by a singular circumstance a fortune is set at their finger-tips. They need only to dupe their faithful and long-serving maid, Abbey, to obtain the fortune. Their reactions are natural and amusing. It gives an interesting cross-section on the character of a man tempted by riches. He is a little too human and succumbs.

Marie Dressler does a regular Dressler job in her role of "Abby," and Helen Mack plays an interesting elopement with Russel Harlow die that somehow gets lost in the skirmish that clouds up when Abby is being cheated of her just deserts. Lionel Barrymore makes the old doctor seem so forgivably human that his crime seems more like one of the flesh than a mark against his personal character. Action rather slow. Probably more forceful on the legal stage.
Cast: Marie Dressler, Lionel Barrymore, Helen Mack, Beulah Bondi, H. B. Warner, and Jean Hersholt.

Saturday Night Preview at the Palace. "Footlight Parade."

Your favorites are teamed in this show. Cagney, your rough and ready young metropolitan, Joan Blondell, the favorite "Blondie" of the populace today, Ruby Keeler, her sweetness, "Sugar Daddy" Guy Kibbee, and Dick Powell, the tender crooner, are drawn within firing distance of one another. At intervals splashes of beautiful women in all states of exposure are showered upon the audience. Particularly interesting is a waterfall scene in which the chorus is not all as wet as it looks. Breezy.

Wednesday Night at the Assembly Hall: "Hold Your Man."

And she held him! Jean Harlow is demurely operating a perfectly respectable little trim game when the dashing hero, Clark Gable, pops into her bathroom and sweeps her off her feet . . . or rather out of her tub. He is a crook on a large scale, and manages to get Jean into a play that results in her being sent to a girls' reformatory. Clark breaks down and decides to do right by the little gal he has wronged, which action is necessitated by a distinct and unlooked-for twist in the plot. From then on it is all action and speed as Clark and Jean pit their wits against those of the reformatory officials.

The settings are exceedingly bidness . . . but that is the price of realism. The situations are what some people would call "tripe," but nevertheless they furnish framework for a powerfully convincing story. It is heat against heat, with the Harlow-Gable team's love dreary . . . even approaching morose. The results of that? Just heat!

Cast: Jean Harlow, Clark Gable.

Trials and tribulations of those forced to live in a boarding house. Mary Carlisle carrying on an affair with a poet, Walter Byron, in spite of marital ties. IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO BREAK RECORDS IN THE AIR!

FLYING EIGHT DAYS AND NIGHTS without a stop, Frances Marsalis and Louise Thaden set the world's endurance flight record for women. Miss Thaden says, "For some years I've smoked Camels. They taste better." Also a Camel fan, Miss Marsalis says, "I've never changed because I can't afford to take chances with my nerves."

RACING ACROSS AMERICA in 10 hours and 54 minutes, Col. Roscoe Turner recently added a new West-East transcontinental speed record to the East-West record he won earlier this year. "Like most pilots I smoke a lot," says Col. Turner. "I smoke Camels for the sake of healthy nerves, and I enjoy them more."

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

Men and women who are famous for their brilliant flying agree about smoking and healthy nerves. "I never worry about healthy nerves," they say, "because I smoke Camels."

They cannot afford to make a mistake in choosing their cigarette. They have to know. And it is more fun to know, because of the greater smoking pleasure they find in Camels. Camels are milder . . . better in taste. They leave no "cigaretty" aftertaste.
