Saturday at 10:30: "Cockeyed Cavaliers."

Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Palace: "Treasure Island," with Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper.

Our old favorite pirate story brought to the screen for your entertainment. Wallace Beery, in the role of Long John Silver, gives an able and interesting portrayal of this famous fictional character. Jackie Cooper is cast in the role of the young adventurer, Jim Hawkins, around whom Stevenson built his story. The old chant of "yo-ho-ho, and a bottle of rum" gains new glamour in this delightful romance. The picture follows fairly closely to the story as told by Stevenson, but this in no way detracts from the delightful and romantic appeal of the picture. "Treasure Island" is a picture for both old and young.

The supporting cast includes Lionel Barrymore, Lewis Stone, Otto Kruger, and Chic Sale.

Sunday and Monday at the Palace: "Servants' Entrance," with Janet Gaynor and Lewis Ayres.

The same old story of the rich girl whose father loses his fortune, and, thrown upon her own resources, she finds that she does not know how to do anything except play, pout, and paint. But she is of a stout heart, and starts out to learn to be useful instead of ornamental. Of course, there is the fiancee who has enough money to buy the cottage, with the pots and kettles for little Janet to use. Since she does not know how to use them, she makes a resolution to go "upon her own" for three months, hoping to come back and make future hubby happy with her cooking. But, as usual, difficulties arise. Unable to cook, she loses her position in the home of Ned Sparks, a melancholy cartoonist, after pulling the old pie flinging act with him. From there, our heroine goes to the home of a social "big-shot." Here she immediately becomes acquainted with Lew Ayres, the hero, who is the family chauffeur. Ayres is designing motor-boats in his spare time, and, like all engineers, has very little use for girls. Of course our heroine falls for him, and has a difficult time choosing between the past and the present, finally ending up to the happiness of all concerned. A delightful story that every person should see.

The supporting cast includes Walter Connolly, Ned Sparks, Louise Dresser, and G. P. Huntley, Jr.

Tuesday and Wednesday at the Palace: "Outcast Lady," with Constance Bennett.

The film version of Michael Arlen's "The Green Hat" which was so popular on Broadway several seasons ago. The play had been filmed as a silent flicker before under the title of "A Woman of Affairs." In its day, "The Green Hat" rarely ever aroused comment beyond its sex sensationalism. However, at this late date, the affairs of the leading ladies have ceased to be a novelty, since the producers have long ago worn out the theme. Constance Bennett gives a servicable performance, inasmuch as she left behind her manual jitters and some of her monotony. "The Green Hat," as always, is an appealing woman's picture. However, if one enjoys a so-called "sophisticated" picture, "Outcast Lady" should fill the bill. Constance Bennett plays the role of a beautiful and provocative Englishwoman ever martyred to the tragic fate of her line. Bad blood and poverty cost her the man of her heart. Loyalty to her husband, who committed suicide on the wedding night, cost her her respectability. An ornamental and useless code of honor takes her life.

The supporting cast includes Herbert Marshall, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Ralph Forbes, and Elizabeth Allan.

Wednesday at the Assembly Hall: "Men in White," with Clark Gable and Myrna Loy.

A story of love in a hospital. The popular and rising young surgeon, played by Gable, is the main force behind the hospital. Gable is engaged to marry Myrna Loy, the daughter of a wealthy man. The naturally spoiled daughter cannot understand Gable's devotion to his work, so a quarrel results. Gable turns to the arms of a student nurse for consolation. Gable loves Myrna devotedly, so finally consents to give up his career. Fate, however, teaches Gable a bitter lesson. The nurse, desperately ill as an aftermath of an illegal operation, is rushed to the operating room, and Gable is to operate. The nurse tells Gable that she still loves him, and forgives him. Myrna overhears this confession. She understands, and forgives Gable, and everything works out suitably, even to the death of the young nurse. The picture has a great deal of emotional display, but is a good performance. The picture is a typical Gable picture.

The supporting cast includes Elizabeth Allan, Otto Kruger, and Jean Hersholt.

Saturday at 6:30 and 8:30: "Gift of Gab," with Edmund Lowe, Gloria Stuart, and Ruth Etting.

A glorious extravaganza of wine, women, and song. A "knockout musical comedy" with all your favorite screen and radio stars. The story opens with a fast talking grafter and his stooge (who, after failing in selling a patented ink remover), inadvertently find themselves pushed into the radio broadcasting game. This picture should extract a consistent flow of laughter from any audience, no matter how cynical. Be sure and see it, even if you are tired of the continual train of musical and radio pictures.

The supporting cast includes such favorites of screen and radio as Phil Baker, Gene Austin, June Knight, Bela Lugosi, Boris Karloff, Andy Devine, Three Stooges, Sterling Holloway, Alice White, and Graham McNamee.

Saturday at 10:30: "Cockeyed Cavaliers," with Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, and Dorothy Lee.

A picture of the middle ages as it couldn't have been. Wheeler and Woolsey pull one fool stunt right after the other, getting into trouble with every act, and getting out by an act of the angel that guards oyer such nuts as these Tickets for the series of entertainments may be obtained at the Y M C A desk or from one of the students who are to canvass the dormitories next week.

Among those canvassing are: Jack Middagh, Odessa; W. C. Rodger, Bonham; George Schultis, Harlingen; J. D. Metcalf, Pearsall; Jack Ferguson, El Paso; Prexy Roberts, Sugarland; W. A. Trembly, Dallas; Frank Bednarek, Schulenberg; George Brailsford, Houston; Alvin Canuteson, Clifton; Baily Barnahan, San Antonio; W. B. Cochran, Houston; F. A. Franz, Dallas; Lebron Hardie, El Paso; Herbert Hartung, San Antonio; Harry Johnston, Laredo; J. B. Lee, Henderson; Martin Cornell, Dallas; L. M. Hubby, Waco; L. M. Sommers, San Antonio; and Walter Young, Sulphur Springs.

Paschal Scottino, two hundred and ten pound guard from last year's Freshman team, is being counted on heavily by Southern Methodist University this fall.

Two. Everyone will enjoy these madhouse antics. Wheeler is the kleptomaniac who has the annoying habit of stealing everything in sight unless stopped by Woolsey. As usual, Woolsey talks himself into a jam by telling the husband (unknown to him as such, of course), that he had a very sweet thing on the line. The two rascals' escapade in capturing the wild boar affording one of the best series of laughs ever provided for screen entertainment. Noah Beery, as the husband of Woolsey's lady friend, provides an excellent song to the amusement of the spectators. He does an excellent job of singing the current popular song, "And the big, bad wolf, was dead."

Be sure to see this picture for the best laugh in months.

the corps a trip they will not soon forget.

The candidates for secretary and treasurer and the number of votes they received are as follows: Roy Ford, Fort Worth, 105; Gordon Lambert, Shreveport, 27; Ray Murray, Harlingen, 35; and Ed Neal, Yoakum, 31. The Historian and the social secretary were voted for at the same time. The candidates for historian were George Schultis, Harlingen, Jack Ferguson, El Paso, and Jack Roach, Decatur. The seniors nominated for social secretary were George Conmas, Quero; Raymond Kerr, Amarillo; Gordon Lambert, and Wallace Langston, San Antonio. The run off was held between Schultis and Roach for historian, and between Kerr and Conmas for social secretary. Schultis won by a margin of 31 votes, and Kerr was elected by a vote of 108 to 46. John Crow was appointed a member of the student athletic council by acclamation.

The entertainment series which will bring many eminent people to the A and M campus this year has been brought about through the efforts of Jack Ferguson. Due to the fact that he has spent much time and effort for which he has received no remuneration, it was suggested that the senior class extend Ferguson a vote of thanks in order to show the appreciation of the student body. The suggestion met with immediate approval and was passed upon without any opposition.

Poultrymen Elect Officers; Discuss Financing Scheme

At the first meeting of the Poultry and Egg Club for the current year, Frank Bednarek, of Schulenburg, was unanimously elected president for the 1934-35 session. Other officers elected were George Roesnor of Katy, vice-president, and Irving White, Amarillo, secretary-treasurer.

The club discussed plans for raising money to send the Poultry Judging Team to the Inter-collegiate Judging Contest late in November. Other plans suggested were a benefit picture show on the campus and the selling of chicken salad sandwiches at the Bryan Fair and at all home football games.

A program committee was appointed, consisting of Dan Lay, Beaumont; Bill Wiley, Port Arthur; and George Roesnor, Katy. The committee was instructed to arrange for addresses to be given by well known College and out-of-town poultrymen at future meetings of the club.

The club is sponsored by Professors D. H. Reid and W. F. Munerlyn.
