Dick Powell has the featured role in this latest musical. He sings his way into the hearts of his listeners again with his excellent singing of the current popular songs, "Pop Goes My Heart" and "Happiness Ahead." The theme of the story is nothing unusual, but the manner in which the picture holds your attention by its action and the singing of the players will distract attention from the lack of plot. Josephine Hutchinson, a newcomer to the screen, is the feminine attraction.

The cast includes Dick Powell, Josephine Hutchinson, Frank McHugh, and Allen Jenkins.

Preview Saturday night, Sunday, and Monday at the Palace: "Limehouse Blues."

George Raft is the young half-caste smuggler, strange mixture of Chinese and American, who uses American gangster methods in his racket of dope-running. Without doubt, the producers picked the only man in Hollywood who is suited to play the part. Raft can look and play the part of the sleek and sinister criminal to perfection, and he really puts it over in this picture. Jean Parker is the beautiful daughter of Raft's smuggler rival, and when Raft bumps the old boy off, he offers the girl a job in his night-club. She accepts, and he immediately falls in love with her. There is a young Chinese dancer who is in love with Raft, and who becomes jealous of this new girl. Jean
