

DEAN RETURNS FROM SEVERAL CHICAGO MEETS

Dean R. P. Marsteller has just returned from a trip to Chicago where he attended meetings of several well known organizations. The most important of the gatherings was a meeting of the Deans of Veterinary Medicine, an organization recognized by the American Veterinary Association and the Bureau of Animal Industries in the United States Department of Agriculture. This meeting was for the purpose of considering problems of school-equipment, courses of study, school clinics, and volume of enrollment.

The schools represented included Cornell University, Michigan State College, Ohio State University, Alabama Polytechnic, Colorado State College, Iowa State College, Kansas State College, and Washington State College.

Dean Marsteller also attended a meeting of the United States Live Stock Sanitary Association, an organization composed of veterinarians and livestock men interested in prevention and control of animal diseases. Dean Marsteller said that the considerations of this organization concerned not only the economic importance of animal diseases, but their important relation to public health.

Other meetings in Chicago attended by Dean Marsteller were those of the Research Workers in Animal Diseases of America, and the Horse and Mule Association of America.

STUDENT OPINION

veys are intended to add a "fourth dimension" to the college press by reporting scientifically national student thought.

Campus interviewers have approached students of every description, rich and poor, freshmen and seniors, in big schools like Columbia in New York and California at Los Angeles and in smaller schools like Luther in Iowa and Schreiner in Texas. They have asked, "Should the United States offer a haven in this country for Jewish refugees from Central Europe?"

YES, said 31.2%
NO, said 68.8%
But it was clear from the coast-to-coast returns that students as a whole would like to see the United States help oppressed German minorities in some way, some suggesting the offering of homes in

20 Pre Med Students Take Aptitude Test

A test required by the American Medical Association for all Pre-Med students who wish to enter medical school was given by Dr. S. H. Hopkins to about twenty A. & M. students. This test emphasized clearness in thinking, ability to retain facts in the mind, and general information.

Any student other than a freshman was eligible to take the test, but one student says that men looking forward to a degree are better prepared than the student who has taken the minimum requirements.

The first part of the test covered rapid reading and retention of medical information. Besides a question to test the student's unlearned 125 points out of a possible 365 devoted to general information questions not pertaining to the medical information. The test also emphasized defining medical words and terms, reasoning ability, and the reading of a passage concerning a new drug, sulfanilamide.

AT THE REGULAR MEETING of the Poultry and Egg club tonight, members will hear an address by Mr. Archer of the South Texas Feed Company of Houston. All nonmembers interested in hearing this address are cordially invited to come to the meeting which will be held in room 115 of the A. I. Bldg. at 7:30.

U. S. possessions. "No country should turn away people who bring so much with them," said an Illinois senior. "But where would we put them?" asked a University of Minnesota. Others definitely believed none should be allowed. Noticeable was the qualification, "If other nations help also."

American Jewish students, congregated in the East Central states, it appears raised the "yes" answers in that particular section of the country, where 38.1 per cent were in favor. In the New England group 35.8 were affirmative; Middle Atlantic 30.1; West Central 30.7; Southern 29.5; Far Western 23.2 Awareness of the problem and distribution of the population among racial lines are pointed out by these sectional figures.

Jones Co. Presents Program of Motion Pictures to Club

The S. M. Jones Company, manufacturers of sucker rods used in oil well pumping, presented the Petroleum Engineering-Geology Club with an interesting talking motion picture on the manufacture and care of sucker rods at the meeting held by the club last Friday night.

Mr. L. Buchner, representative of the Jones company, led a discussion after the picture had been presented and explained the use of the dynamometer used in analyzing pumping strokes on a pumping well. He brought with him a dynamometer set used by the company and explained the setup to the members.

J. P. Hayes, instructor in petroleum, made a brief talk on the value of the student chapter of the A.I.M.E. and the work being done by the A.I.M.E. in obtaining the use of the loan fund for petroleum engineering seniors needing funds to complete the year.

H. E. Gross, equipment instructor in petroleum, made a brief talk on the value of the dynamometer and stressed the use of it in oil field work.

MARVIN SMITH

the requirement being six years in acceptable professional work, two years in a responsible position, and a thesis. The Smith thesis was a summary of his professional writings contributed to scientific publications.

Speaking at the testimonial banquet Smith gave the following twelve rules for success.

"Get interested in work you are doing if you expect to go to higher positions.

"Learn to do your job well and then learn your superior's job so you will be ready for it if opportunity presents itself.

"Don't worry too much about credit for what you do—that will come if you do your work well.

"Learn to accept responsibility. "Make good friends of the right kind of people. Cultivate those ahead of you and let those behind you cultivate you.

Broaden your interests in life by taking active part in community work—be a good citizen.

"Have courage of your convictions and carry through those plans you firmly believe are right.

"Never attempt sharp practices on your superiors.

"Surround yourself with best possible associates and make use of their abilities.

"Delegate as much authority as possible to associates but never lose touch with what is going on.

"Be natural in all your acts—avoid imitation."
