HORSE SENSE

A temperance lecturer was waxing very eloquent and intermixing his sermonette with concrete examples of abstinence. "If you lead a donkey up to a pail of water and a pail of beer, which will he choose to drink?"

At which climax a heckler in the audience grabbed the speaker's punch-line and shouted out, "The water, of course."

Hoping to shut up the annoyance, the lecturer ventured the question, "And why, my good man would the donkey choose the water?"

Like a flash came the heckler's reply, "Because he's an ass."

LIKE FATHER LIKE SON

In days of yore
Men by the score
    Went in for wild west trekking;
And now the lads,
    Just like their dads,
Make for the waists in the necking.

A drunk was swaying back and forth on the sidewalk when the cop stepped up and asked him what he was doing and where he lived.

"Right there," he said, pointing to a house, "but I rang the bell and nobody answered."

"How long ago was that?" asked the cop.

"Oh, a couple of hours."

"Well, why don't you try them again?"

"Aw, to hell with 'em—let 'em wait."

"Honey," she asked, "You don't mind if I wear serge instead of georgette, do you?"

"No, Darling," he answered, "I'll love you through thick or thin!"

Teacher—Johnnie, did you want to leave the room?

Johnnie—Say, teacher, you don't think I'm standing here hitch-hiking, do yuh?

"I shall put you fellows in this room," said the host, "you'll have a comfortable night, for it has a feather bed."

At two o'clock in the morning one of the guests awoke his companion.

"Change places with me, Dick," he groaned, "It's my time to be on the feather."

Little Audrey and her sister Sue went dancing with two sailors. These nautical gentry were unfortunately guilty of B.O. and perhaps because of this or other causes, Sister Sue fainted. Someone in the crowd called for smelling salts, but little Audrey laughed and laughed because she knew they were already there.
