

Cotton Ball Date Set At April 21; R.V.'S To Hold Events Easter Week

Change in Time For Spring Recess Cause Re-Planning

The Cotton Ball will be held April 21 instead of April 7, as previously scheduled, according to Prof. J. F. Mogford, faculty adviser for the event. The change in date was made through a decision of the senior members of the Agromony Society, which is sponsoring the Ball, the objection being that the previous schedule called for the Ball to occur during the new spring holiday period.

The Ross Volunteers have re-scheduled their events to occur during the spring recess, which now will be held Easter weekend. Beal Hargrove of Troy will reign over the Ball, which is one of the oldest social events of the campus and is one of the most widely known over the entire state. Hargrove, who is manager of the Entertainment Series this year, was elected by acclamation last week. Proceeds from the Cotton Ball and Style Show will go to help defray the expenses of the annual cotton tour through Europe which is made each year by three Agromony students. This year will be the eighth of these trips.

Committees are now being appointed to begin work on arrangements for the Ball and Style Show, and plans will be started soon for making this year's occasion a success.

n't realize it till we opened up with the 'Stars and Stripes Forever.' Boy, was I shocked when that music jumped out and hit me! I never heard any orchestra sound so loud before. It almost knocked me back into the crowd, but I hadn't heard anything yet.

"When we finished I thought I'd get a chance to recover my hearing between pieces. But I hadn't turned round before a mightier sound broke loose. It was twice as loud as the music had been. You see, it was those boys in the gallery. They didn't applaud. They cheered—yelling, I think they call it at A. & M. They all but took the roof from the building, and by that time none of us up there on the stage could have heard a train whistle behind us. They certainly love music at A. & M.!"

"Yes," I said, "especially the 'Stars and Stripes Forever.' It's lucky you didn't open with 'Good-bye to Texas,' or one of their other favorite. Beethoven selections. They'd have got up and marched, taking out several walls of the building."

Hoffman nodded agreement. "Yes," he said, "I'm glad we didn't play any Beethoven. But I thought they were going to march without that. You should have heard some of them whistle!"

"So what did you play then?" I asked.
"Well," he said, "we went through the overture to 'William Tell,' the 'Arkansas Traveler,' the 'Blue Danube' waltz, the overture to 'Tannhauser,' one of Brahms' Hungarian dances, the last two movements of Tchaikowsky's Fourth Symphony, the 'Merry Widows waltzes,' 'Deep River' and Ravel's 'Bolero.'"

"Was that all?" I said.
"That's all we intended to play. But after every piece that cheering got louder and louder. You'd have thought they were breaking up the seats. They ate up things like the 'Tannhauser' and 'Blue Danube,' and boy, when we got through the 'Bolero,' you couldn't hear yourself think in the building. We were all played to a frazzle, but we couldn't leave. I never saw such a grateful audience. So we had to get up enough wind for three encores, the Bocherini Minuet, Paul White's 'Mosquito Dance' and the Schubert 'Marche Militaire.' After that we just collapsed and quit."

"Then the funniest thing of all happened. They sent me a big bouquet of flowers. I never heard of a symphony conductor getting flowers before, but I suppose it's one of the customs of the school. That's a wonderful place up there; they do everything in a big way. After the concert they practically mobbed us for autographs—they didn't only want mine, they fell on everybody from the bass fiddlers to the piccolo player."

"Before the performance we were given a dinner in the mess hall, and afterwards there was another reception."

"That didn't go on all night, did it?" I asked.
"Oh, no," said Hoffmann. "We got off about 1 a. m., but I took the wrong road and backed my car off in a ditch. It stuck there and we had to walk a mile back to the school and get a professor to come out with his car and pull us onto the road. We got home at 5 o'clock in the morning, mucky up

Attention of all students is called to Paragraph 18 of the College Regulations, which states that students may drop a course only by authority of the dean of their school. Persistent unauthorized absence from a class prior to obtaining the Dean's authority to drop the course subjects the student to disciplinary action.

"Gee, but we had a wonderful time. I hope they'll ask us again." "I think they will," I said, "if you don't let 'em find out you're playing for Texas university this season, too."
Ernat Hoffman rose. "Yes, Aggies!" he said, and went home to sleep.

THE BATTALION

first page of the Official Schedule of Classes for the second semester. All students who were passing less than ten hours of work on their preliminary report of December 1 will not be able to register for the second semester unless they have an approved permit from their dean.

The deans of the several schools will be unable to confer with any of the deficient students about registration for the second semester until Saturday morning, Feb. 4. All deficient students should wait until Saturday morning before attempting to confer with their deans concerning a permit for registration for the second semester. On Saturday morning, February 4, the deans will be in their offices to confer with deficient students and the following schedule should be observed by the students in reporting to their deans.

School of Arts and Sciences: A to H, inclusive, 9-10 a. m. I to T, inclusive, 10-11 a. m.; U to Z, inclusive, 11-12 a. m.

School of Agriculture: A to H, inclusive, 9-10 a. m.; I to T, inclusive, 10-11 a. m.; U to Z, inclusive, 11-12 a. m.

School of Engineering: A to D, inclusive, 9-10 a. m.; E to H, inclusive, 10-11 a. m.; I to Q, inclusive, 11-12 a. m.; R to V, inclusive, 12-1 p. m.; W to Z, inclusive, 1-2 p. m.

School of Veterinary Medicine: A to M inclusive, 9-10 a. m.; N to Z, inclusive, 10-11 a. m.

Should the dean of your school approve of your registration for the second semester, you will be given a permit which should be brought immediately to the Registrar's Office in order that our records may be corrected which will permit you to register on Monday, February 6. Registration for all students who were unable to register Friday will be on Monday, February 6.

The failure on the part of a student in complying with this schedule will result in a delay in registration and any registration completed after 5 p. m. Monday, February 6, will result in the penalties of late registration which are a $2 additional matriculation fee and a reduction of 5 points in the student's daily average.

The cooperation of all students concerned in observing this schedule is requested and all students are urged to be very prompt in reporting to their deans at the scheduled hour.

E. J. Howell
Registrar

Registration for the second semester will be held on Friday, February 3, 7:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. and Monday, February 6. In order to eliminate some congestion on these days of registration, the Fiscal Office will begin receiving fees of students for the second semester on Monday, January 30. All old students are urged to pay their fees in advance of Friday, Feb. 3. In doing this, old students will avoid considerable delay on the regular days of registration.

SKIING IS EXCITING! "But don't let nerve tension spoil your fun . . .

LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL

advises HANS THORNER Skilling expert and director of the Mount Washington (N. H.) Swiss Ski School

BETWEEN ORGANIZING CLASSES, checking up on equipment, giving exhibitions, and a host of other activities, there's plenty of nerve strain in Hans Thorner's day too! At left you see him taking his own advice about the way to avoid getting tense, jittery. He's letting up to light up a Camel. "It's a grand way to break nerve tension," says Thorner. "I find Camels quite soothing to the nerves."

WHEN BUSY, STRENUOUS days put your nerves on the spot, take a tip from the wire fox terrier pictured here. Despite his complex nerve system, he quickly halts after activity, to relax—to ease his nerves. Often, we humans ignore this instinctive urge to break nerve tension. We may even drive on relentlessly, forgetting that tiring nerves may soon be jittery nerves! Yet the welfare of your nerves is really vital to your success, to your happiness. Make it your pleasant rite to pause regularly—to LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL. Start today—add an extra measure of comfort for your smoking with Camel's finer, costlier tobaccos.

HUNDREDS OF SKIERS have made their debut to this winter sport under Hans Thorner's expert guidance. One skiing principle he stresses is: "Don't let your nerves get tense, keyed-up." His advice to pupils: "Pause regularly—let up—light up a Camel."
