ECON 497. Distribution of Chalk and Erasers in the Red Russian Classroom.

The purpose of this course is to give the student a glimpse of the modern methods of distribution of classroom equipment in institutions of higher learning in the Soviet as contrasted with the inefficient American way. Special attention will be given to the situation in this institution. Course will be taught by a red radical who has wonderful gestures.

ECON 498. Economic Problems of Real Estate Investment (not Speculation).

This course gives the student not only a theoretical study of the problems in connection with the development of real estate in swamps and thickly-wooded districts, but much time is devoted to the study of the history of many successful developments, such as College Park Development Company, Inc.

ENGL 000. (Prerequisite to English 1.) Syntax, Semantics and Inflections.

In this course we make a determined effort to teach the student to write a complete sentence.

ENGL 1,452. The Philosophy of Living Liberalism in Contemporary America.

This course, taught in the only sumptuous classroom on the campus—that in the Library—has as its authority Stuart Chase. A liberal is defined in the course to mean a person with so much knowledge on both sides of a question that he can hop on either side of the fence and not rip his pants on the way over. It might be called in short, Why the Economics Department is All Wet.

HIST 497. The Shoddy Arreestocracy.

A broadening course which travels all the way from the Balkan States to the United States in the period of a few instances of throwing the book out of the window and ruining fellows to be sent to C. I. A. Taught from the viewpoints of the lawyer, the preacher and the teacher, including points on why not to use Consumer's Guide.

R S .051. Development of Romantic Relations Between Regions of Texas, or How to Spend the Weekend on the T. S. C. W. Campus. (Prerequisite to Family Relations.)
