A girl will never forgive a man for completely understanding her.

Sunday School Superintendent: "Who led the children of Israel into Canaan? Will one of the smaller boys answer?"

No reply.

Superintendent (somewhat sternly): "Can no one tell? Little boy on that seat next to the aisle, who led the children of Israel into Canaan?"

Little Boy (badly frightened): "It wasn't me. I—I just moved yere last week f'm Mizoury."

TRUST IN ME

Clerk (to a suspicious-looking couple in the hotel lobby)—I don't believe you people are married after all.

Lady—Sir, if my husband were only here he would make you swallow those words.

REVERIE

It was a very dark night.
A morosely brooding black, its intensity of gloom unlit by any gleam of light whatsoever.

It was a terrifically dark night. Like an impenetrable wall, the dense darkness prevailed unstintedly. The murkiness of it could almost be felt.

It was an infernally dark night. The hours wore on, but the grimly nigrescent pall held an undisputably Stygian sway. Cimmerian-like, more black than the ebon shade of Erebus, it tightly enshrouded the sleeping world.

No doubt about it. It was a hell of a dark sight.

One stormy evening in Harlem, two gentlemen were settling a dispute. For a while there was no sound but heavy breathing and the swish-swish of razors. Finally, one of the gentlemen made a lunge at the other.

"Ha-ha, you missed," cried the lungee gleefully.

"Oh yeah?" remarked the other.

"Just try turning your head."

One: See that girl? That's my girl.
Two: Uh-huh. Good looking fox scarf she's got.

Three: Yeah. I gave her that.

Four: She's a fair looking dame. Pretty hat.

Halt: In fact, the whole outfit she's wearing is swell—elegant.

Rest: Shore is. I gave it to her.

Dis: And say—that's a cute little boy she has with her.

Missed: Ye...h. That's her brother.

"You have beautiful eyes," wrote the young lawyer, "and exquisite long lashes, and I love the way the aforesaid eyes peep out from under the aforesaid lashes."
