

Texas Veterinary Association To Hold Meeting On Aggie Campus

Today and tomorrow the State Veterinary Medical Association of Texas is holding its sixteenth semi-annual convention of the A. & M. campus.

Yesterday and today the Board of Examiners of the Association gave examinations to approximately thirty applicants for licenses to practice veterinary medicine in Texas.

The meeting of the Association includes lectures and meetings of several special committees as well as several entertainments. "An effort has been made to balance the program to include equal time devoted to both large and small animal subjects as well as clinical demonstrations," Sam E. Bunton, Association president, has stated.

This morning the convention began with a business meeting, followed by a luncheon for members and visitors in the mess hall annex. This afternoon is scheduled a lecture on the operations, with a demonstration and discussion of diseases, of farm and ranch animals, by Dr. James Farquharson, professor of veterinary surgery and clinics of Colorado State College. Tonight will take place a banquet and dance, and other entertainment, for members and visitors, at the Parker Club in Bryan.

Tomorrow morning Dr. Edwin J. Frick, professor of veterinary medicine and surgery of Kansas State College, will speak on the operations and diseases of dogs, cats, and fur-bearing animals. At noon the veterinary medicine alumni of A. & M. will have a luncheon in the mess hall annex.

Tomorrow afternoon Dr. Hubert Schmidt, chief of the Division of Veterinary Science of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at A. & M.; Dr. H. L. Van Volkenberg, professor of veterinary parasitology of A. & M.; Dr. Edwin J.

Frick, and Dr. James Farquharson will give discussions of animal diseases. Tomorrow night the Association will witness motion pictures and exhibits on animal diseases and will take part in round-table discussions.

The ladies' auxiliary program includes a picture show party, a travelog by Mrs. Edwin J. Frick and Mrs. R. P. Marsteller, a trip to Sam Houston Park at Huntsville and a dinner at Madisonville, a dinner and dance, a breakfast at Hensel Park (College Station), a business meeting, and a visit to the College Museum.

Attractive booklets were prepared for the convention.

COLLEGE GETS NEW DIAL PHONES AND TELEPHONE OFFICE

The appearance of new telephones around the campus has created quite a little interest, since the phones are equipped with a dial system.

According to M. C. Atkins, district manager with office in Bryan, the Southwest Telephone Company is installing a complete set of telephones in Bryan and College. First, however, the campus proper will receive the new phones and will put them in use around the first of September. The rest of the local set-up will be supplied with new phones as soon as they can be installed.

Along with the new telephones at College will be built an office building, which is already nearly completed. The new office is located adjacent to the Artillery sheds.

Today's Summer Registration Marks College's Thirty-First

Registration today will mark the beginning of the college's 31st summer session. The first A. & M. summer school, held in 1901, was unsuccessful from the point of attendance, and the practice was therefore discontinued until 1910, at which time the college made its second attempt at a summer session. Proving successful, the annual summer sessions have been continued since that time.

The phenomenal growth of the summer school is evidenced by the fact that the session of 1918 enrolled less than 100 students, whereas the current session will see an estimated 2200 students.

The summer school faculty has grown equally as fast as the student body. In 1918 the summer faculty numbered 28, as compared with nearly 200 professors taking part in the 1939 session.

The original purpose of summer school was to allow regular college students an opportunity to make up work which had been failed during the regular session and thus graduate with their class. Now, however, several other fields are covered. Many men and women take this opportunity to attend college during summer vacation and get further training in professional and other lines.

A recent development of the summer session is the presentation of "short unit" courses, whereby full credit is given for work concentrated into a three-week period of day-long classes.

Dr. C. H. Winkler, director of the A. & M. summer session, has acted in that capacity since 1923; previous to which time the directorship was held by the late Dr. J. O. Morgan, formerly head of the Agronomy Department.

Bible Study Courses Offered First Semester

Two courses in Bible study, Religion 307 and Religion 302, will be offered by the Department of Religious Education during the first session of summer school. Each course carries three hours of credit and comes under the School of Arts and Sciences.

The history, social conditions, and religious development of the Hebrew people included in the Old Testament from Joshua through Esther will be covered in Religion 307.

Religion 302 takes up the study of the establishment of the original church. It will cover the period in the New Testament dealing with the development of Christianity immediately following the death of Jesus to the close of the first century. A part of the course will be the formulation of the teachings which now constitute the essential doctrines of Christianity, and the opposing groups confronting the early church.

Library and Hospital Announce Hours

The Library will be open during the summer from 8 a. m. until 10 p. m. every day, with the exception of the period from noon Saturday until 8 a. m. Sunday.

The College Hospital will maintain the following sick call hours: 12 to 2, and 4 to 6, at which time all who need treatment and have paid their medical fees may receive such treatment.

Americanization His Subject At Annual Banquet

BY GEORGE FUERMANN

Texas' dynamic Congressman, Martin Dies, was the principal speaker at the annual joint banquet of the A. & M. Former Students' Association and the college faculty held in the banquet room of the mess hall last Saturday noon.

Dies' address, which was delivered before more than 400 persons who attended the banquet, was titled "Americanization, and the Responsibility of American Educational Institutions in Fostering It." As chairman of the Congressional committee on the investigation of un-American activities, Dies was well equipped to make his address which was one of the most outstanding made on the A. & M. campus this year.

Following the banquet, the Former Students' Association held their annual meeting and election of officers. C. P. Dodson, Decatur, was elected president of the Association; A. G. Pfaff, Tyler, was elected vice-president; and E. E. McQuillen was reelected secretary-treasurer. Elected as the Association's representative on the Athletic Council was M. J. Miller, Fort Worth. Twenty-seven men were elected to the Board of Directors of the Association for next year.

Five classes of ex-students held special reunions as the classes of '99, '04, '09, '14 and '29 convened on the Aggie campus in one of the biggest meetings of former students in the school's history.

While at College Station for the annual meeting of their Association, the former students attended the Baccalaureate sermon, the Commencement exercises, President Walton's reception and the Final Ball on Friday. They also visited the college's various departments and buildings and attended several reunion functions. Saturday morning before their banquet and annual meeting the ex-students witnessed the Final Review.

COURTING NOTE: Pennsylvania State College's Dr. Robert G. Bernreuter has issued a statement urging co-eds to give more attention to the student grinds and avoid the good time Charlies. He says the latter will be working for the former ten years from now, and, therefore, the grinds will be the best providers. Moral: Hit the books, boys, for some of the fair ones are going to take the doctor's advice!

Carnegie Music Room Is A Form Of Free Entertainment

Among the most important of the gratis forms of entertainment that summer students may take advantage of is the Carnegie Music Room located on the top "stoop" of the Cushing Memorial Library.

The music room, in its present makeup, has existed since January, 1937. Previous to that time, however, there had already existed for several years a small collection of Dr. T. F. Mayo's, librarian, which he made available to the student body with his own phonograph.

Early in 1936, at the suggestion of one of the students (Sam Greenberg, who had previously seen one of the Carnegie sets at Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh), Dr. Mayo put in a request to the Carnegie Foundation of America for one of their sets. At first the request was refused on the grounds that the Foundation had hundreds of requests and only a few sets to give. However, after the Carnegie Foundation learned of the collection already existing in the library, a Carnegie set was immediately granted to the college.

The set is composed of more than a thousand records, 300 books on music and musicians and about 200 scores on the various musical works included in the records. Although the Carnegie Foundation has placed a value on the set of $2,500 (including the victrola and loud speaker), this price does not even approach the cost of the entire set at retail value.

The records cover the music of all countries, all types of music and works of all the major and many of the lesser composers. The set includes complete symphonies, five complete operas and hundreds of other musical works.

It is interesting to know that in the more than two years of very hard use that the records have received, only twenty of the records have been broken which, according to Dr. Mayo, is a remarkable fact. The rules for the music room are as follows:

1. During the day the room is "free for all". That is, anyone may listen to the music and stay in the room.
