

Traditional Functions End School Year At A & M

MARGARET HOLLINGSHEAD

The Commencement address to the 623 members of the sixty-third graduating class at A. & M. was delivered by Colonel Willard Chevalier, vice-president of the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company of New York, Friday night on Kyle Field immediately following the Commencement Processional which began at 6 o'clock.

Following the Valedictory address by Cadet Captain Andrew P. Rollins Jr. of Dallas, Walter G. Lacy, vice-president of the A. & M. Board of Directors, conferred degrees upon the members of the graduating class. The largest number of degrees was received by students in the School of Agriculture, which conferred 294; next came the School of Engineering, with 215, the the School of Arts and Sciences with 56, and 47 receiving the degree of doctor of veterinary medicine. Twenty-six members of the Graduate School received degrees of master of science; and six professional degrees in engineering were presented.

At the conclusion of the Commencement exercises, President and Mrs. T. O. Walton were at home informally to members of the graduating class and their guests, former students and their families, and members of the faculty and their families.

Concluding the graduating ceremonies was the formal presentation of Reserve Commissions to senior members of the R. O. T. C. by Colonel George D. Sears of the staff of the 36th Division of the Texas National Guard at 8:30 Saturday morning.

Despite a heavy rain, the traditional Final Review was held at 9:30 before an estimated crowd of 5,000 persons. Toward the end of the review, however, the sun came out, and ended the history of the class of '39 with a steaming smile.

"Strap Buckner," jolly legendary bully of the Southwest, who got himself "in bad" when he tackled the Devil and was ignominiously spanked for his daring, is presented in one of the free-standing sculptured folk-lore groups on the facade of the Medicine and Public Health Building at the New York World's Fair.

A gigantic reproduction of a cash register mounted on a tall building is to record and display continuously in large figures the daily attendance at the New York World's Fair.

Leon Brachman, Harvard University freshman, doesn't believe in privacy. In fact, he's such a strong non-believer that his room is jammed full of staring, dead-pan dolls who glare at him from all corners of his room. Reason: His chief hobby is doll collecting—but don't make any wise-cracks in his presence, for he's also an amateur boxer of no mean reputation.

Herbie Kay, nationally known orchestra leader, teams up with charming vocalist Wynne Fair to "swing out" for the Final Ball. Kay's orchestra also played for the Junior Banquet and Prom the night before.
