College Negro Dies Of Heart Failure

Richard Boones, age 47, died of heart failure Tuesday at 4 p. m., while working on the new addition to the creamery building. The death of the colored laborer was not discovered until 4:30. A fellow workman reported that Boones had complained of feeling weak and had laid in the shade of a tree back of the creamery to rest for a few, minutes. Because of the confusion $10 monthly. of the laborers following the discovery of the body, the coroner was not summoned immediately. This caused a delay of several hours before official sanction for the removal of the body could be secured. Richard Boones was well-known about the campus. He had been employed by the A. & M. plumbing
