by driving on a twenty-five per cent commission of the gross receipts, the rest of which goes to James and will be used to finance the remainder of his work on his master's degree in Municipal and Sanitary Engineering.

James finished A. & M. in 1938, having majored in Marketing and Finance. Since then he has been working on a taxicab thesis for which he obtained much information from jitney corporations in every major city in the United States. The four-thousand dollar business is the result of an experiment and is meeting with so much success that the adding of more cabs and drivers may be necessitated.

An attempt is being made to keep one cab at College Station, one in Bryan, and the other on the highway between the two terminals. Special calls are fifty cents; calls from the new dorms are fifteen cents; and cabs by the hour are a dollar an hour. The unique distinction of being the only cabs allowed on the campus surrounding the new halls has been afforded the Aggie Cab Company.

Dean Gilchrist supported the statements of Colonel Ashburn as to the plans of the College, and also that the establishment and proper equipment of the field would give facilities that neither College nor Bryan, working alone, would be able to set up.

The objection made to the location on Highway 21, west of Bryan, was that it was too far from College to be used for student training, in view of the fact that the time of the students would be limited and too much would be required for transport.

W. J. Coulter, representing his family, which made a gift of money to the city, making possible the purchase of the land on Highway 21, stated that if the field were established at College and the name
