THE BATTALION _____

George Fuermann

What Do You Think About It? Registers as Number 6,000

Saturday The Battalion published an editorial allows only wealthier boys to attend the school. We "At the Crossroads" from The Texas Aggie, newspaper of the Former Students Association which is the voice of 25,000 ex-Aggies. The editorial, written by E. E. McQuillen, secretary of the Association, ex-Aggie of the class of 1920 and lieutenantcolonel of the corps during his senior year, condemns without "pulling any punches" the ruling of the Board of Directors which provided that all the dormitories, old and new, had to be filled before any student could live off the campus, thereby preventing many boys from registering. Though they may now, for most of them it's too late.

The editorial, one dealing with a tremendously important and much debated subject, has been greeted with great approval and high praise from the majority of its readers. It states that the authorities of the college were not consulted for their opinions or advice; that a student housing committee which made a long study, full report and several recommendations on housing last spring, was entirely disregarded; and that it is no secret that the officials were shocked by the passage of the rule.

Chief criticisms made in "At the Crossroads" seem to be that the ruling (1) hurts from 700 to 1,100 boys by preventing them from coming to school at A. & M., and many of them anywhere at all; and (2) hurts the school by creating the possibility of future enrollment decreases, by helping all the small colleges and junior colleges to swell enrollments and gain greater prestige while A. & M. stands still, and by causing a loss of respect for A. & M. all over the state. And Mr. McQuillan presents plenty of substantiating evidence.

It's regrettable that we have not space to comment on all of the facts brought out in Mr. Mc-Quillen's editorial. Suffice it to say that he has consulted with all officials of the college and authorities on the student housing problem; he has learned all the facts of the matter; and he gives a well-considered opinion, the same that has been expressed by many students, many officials, and many teachers of the college. And on this same question The Battalion wishes to dwell a moment-though we do not propose to act as arbiter for the Board of Directors.

The Battalion is glad of our peak enrollment of more than 6,000. We are glad that the dormitories were filled. We believe unquestionably in the value of the dormitory system and dormitory life. But we believe that boys who would sacrifice comfort, convenience, luxuries, recreational opportunities, all for the sake of acquiring a college education, should not be deprived of their opportunity by a ruling which are glad boys are not having to live in Navasota and other far-away project houses. But we believe by far the majority of the day-students of the last two or three years have lived as such only because they could not afford to live in the halls - not because they didn't want to. Boys who sacrifice to obtain a college education, degree and diploma, are generally highly worthy of receiving them. A college education usually means the most to boys who have to work hardest for it. And to deprive those boys of their chance of getting one, at this school traditionally known as a democratic, "poor man's school, is, we think, most unfortunate. It tends to make of A. & M. a "rich man's" school, causing several hundred boys to have to stop entirely their college careers. It has caused much loss of respect for the school over the state, as is pointed out in "At the Crossroads".

Our enrollment cannot forever keep on climbing. The increase in the number of new students is growing smaller each year. The figures show that the great increase here this semester was not in the number of new students, but in the number of old students returning. During the term many students of the board to live in the halls will in all probability have to move out again because of depleted finances. Under the present ruling these students cannot even become day-students.

The new ruling, it seems to us, could have been a compromise measure, eliminating the most undesirable aspects of off-the-campus residence, while at the same time allowing poor boys who could not possibly afford dormitory residence to live in approved quarters as near the campus as possible. As "At the Crossroads" state, we believe the dormi- not to get too much in the habit "comes the old line about having to sweaters and each time an Aggie tories might have been filled without compulsion.
