Applications for Appointment in Officers' Reserve Corps

Preliminary applications for appointment in the Officers' Reserve Corps of students who expect to graduate at the end of this school year are now being issued to students attending senior military science classes.
Students who have already completed the prescribed four years of ROTC instruction should report to Room 101, Academic Building and obtain one of these forms. At the same time they should ask if it is necessary for them to obtain another physical examination. Students who attended the ROTC camps prior to June 1, 1939 will have to have new Reports of Physical examinations to be forwarded with their applications.
Students not now taking military science who expect to receive the degree of DVM at the end of this school year and who desire appointment in the Veterinary Reserves will be notified at the Veterinary Hospital when to report.
Students who expect to graduate at the end of the first term of this school year and who have completed the ROTC course and attended camp or who expect to graduate in Veterinary Medicine at that time and who desire appointment in the Officers' Reserve Corps should report at Room 101, Academic Building during their first vacant period to obtain preliminary applications.
By order of Colonel MOORE.

Off For Fort Worth

A. & M. students leave by all methods just preceding football games but by far the most popular is the "thumb" method. Above are shown an aggregation of Aggies leaving for Fort Worth for the first Aggie corps trip of the season.

Hooton, Twilight of Man. Too plausible to be comfortable.
O'Brien, Best Short Stories of 1939.
Lynd, Knowledge For What? Discussion of the place of social science in America.
Malchow, The Sexual Life.
Weyl, Cardenas and the Mexican Revolution.
Dos Passos, Adventures of a Young Man. Thoughtful and realistic novel about the radical movement.
Dos Passos, Three Soldiers. Probably the best novel written about the late war.
Beard, Giddy Minds and Foreign Quarrels.
Hays, Democracy Works. An American liberal writers in defense of American democracy.
Marquand, Wickford Point. A novel.
Franklin, La Guardia.
Eagle, Corn. Poems by a young Iowa poet.
McWilliams, Factories in the field.
Florinsky, Toward An Understanding of the U.S.S.R.
Donato, Christ In Concrete. First novel of a young Italian concrete worker in New York.
Carmer, The Hudson. Legends and true stories about people who pioneered along the river.
Borsodi, Prosperity and Security. Anti-capitalist approach to the problem of improving living conditions.

Saint Exupery, Wind, Sand and Stars. Beautifully written account of a French Airman's flights.
Partridge, Country Lawyer.
Baker, Young Man With a Horn. Novel of a young man and his life in a Jazz Band.
Streit, Union Now. Proposal for a federal of the democracies of the North Atlantic.
The above list, and supplementary ones to be issued in the future, will be posted in the entrance hall of the Library.

INTRAMURALS

With Hub Johnson
By Hub Johnson
With few games being scheduled for Thursday evening and none for Friday evening the reports are scarce. In fact, it appears that mostly sleep has been the bill for the last two days.

Dave Alsbrook, Aggie baseball star, was the spark in the I Infantry team as they stopped the D Company boys 9 to 2 in a late game of basketball last week. The I Company team has good cause to issue fair warning to all other in their league and in the others as well to bear down as they come near. They took the game with ease and had reserves to spare.

Galloway scored the only tally for D Infantry in the first half. After that Dave at one of the guard positions stopped all comers and the rest of the team continued to run up the points.

The swimming meet promises to be larger than ever this year as many prospective entrants are to be seen in the pool daily, and the swimming class appears much like a swimming team practice with all the freshmen trying to better their past records or preparing to attempt to make their first here.

Preliminaries for the meet will be run November 4 with the meet taking place the following evening.

Two games of basketball and three of football headed the freshman class the last of this week. A Chemical Warfare fish turned back E Engineers in a close game ending 7 to 15. S. W. Deadman and B. T. Flowers led the chem team with eight and six points respectively with J. W. Newsom and A. B. Canfield registering six each for the Engineers.

With all points marked up in the first half of a tight game, A Signal Corps and G Coast Artillery settled down to try to hold each other to no more scratches. The game ended 10 to 9 with the Signal Corps on the heavy side. Darnell for the signal team and Connelly for the coast each scored four points.

Barnyard Vocal Talents Needed For Baylor Play

Paging: Anyone with barnyard vocal talents.
Many are the sound effects necessary in the production of "Our Town," Baylor University Little Theatre play scheduled for Nov. 9 and 10, and Louise Butler, Baylor fellowship instructor, has the job of rounding them up.
"Our Town" is any typical small town in America, and for its most realistic representation, all sounds common to activities in such a town must be produced.

Miss Butler listed as still un-found suitable effects for a bob white call, horse whinny, cock crow, chickens being fed and crickets, in the barnyard classification.
Other effects needed are train whistles, factory whistles, mill whistles, thunder, lawnmower, the sound of newspapers hitting the front porch, of milk bottles being delivered in a hand rack, of the old fashioned school bell of the early 1900's, and of church bells for a wedding scene.

THIS IS LIFE INSURANCE WEEK

"Life Insurance rests upon the assumption that there are riches which the individual can neither control nor carry single-handed and alone.

"Insurance is the modern method by which men make the uncertain certain and the unequal equal. Every insurance policy is a Declaration of Independence, a charter of economic freedom. He who holds one has overcome adversity."
