Mother (examining daughter's wardrobe): Did you go to that dance last night, dear?

Daughter: No, mother; I ripped that shoulder strap playing tennis.

If every boy in the United States could read every girl's mind, the gasoline consumption would drop off 50 per cent.

Slicker: What are you twisting that mule's tail for?

Rube: He ain't got no self-starter, so I gotta crank him up.

Frosh: What is the date, please?

Prof: Never mind the date. The examination is more important.

Frosh: But I wanted to have something right on my paper.

"This new vest I bought is tighter than my skin!"

"Nonsense. It couldn't be."

"Yes it is! I can sit down in my skin, but not in this vest."

He: Isn't your mother afraid to let you go out alone in that gown?

She: Oh, no. She knows I won't be alone long in this gown!"
