STUDENTS NOT REGISTERING FOR SECOND SEMESTER

Students who do not intend to register for the second semester must check out through the Commandant's Office in order to clear their record.

COL. GEORGE F. MOORE, Commandant

LANGUAGE SCHEDULE ADDITIONS

Lang. 222, Technical French Readings (3-0), will be given in the second term, if registration warrants. Open to graduate students who have had French (see head of department); open also to undergraduates who have had Lang. 291 or its equivalent, but not as a substitute for regular course 202, since it is only a two-hour course.

In case Lang. 222 is not given, it would be possible to give instead Lang. 224, a corresponding course in Technical German.

C. B. CAMPBELL, Head of Modern Language Dept.

DAY-STUDENTS

A day-student will be required to present either a day-student permit or a fee receipt for the first semester before he will be allowed to pay day-student fees for the second semester.

"IT'S CAPTAIN BILL KENNEDY NOW," STATES ARMY AIR CORPS

Captain William L. Kennedy, ex-Aggie in the air corps at Kelly Field, Texas, recently received notification of his promotion to the grade of captain, with rank from January 6, 1940.

Captain Kennedy first entered the service as a flying cadet on October 25, 1928, when he entered the Air Corps Primary Flying School; he graduated October 12, 1929, in the bombardment section, Air Corps Advanced Flying School, Kelly Field, Texas. He then accepted appointment as a Second Lieutenant, Air Corps Reserve, on October 12, 1929 and was on extended active duty as a reserve officer until February 3, 1930. He was appointed a second lieutenant in the regular army on January 6, 1930; held a temporary appointment as first lieutenant from March 12, 1935 to July 31, 1936, receiving his permanent appointment in that grade on August 1, 1935.

Captain Kennedy's home is in Beaumont, Texas, and he graduated from A. & M. with the degree of bachelor of science with the class of 1928. He is also a graduate of the Air Corps Technical School (Armament Course). He was assigned to duty at Kelly Field, Texas, on April 8, 1935, where he has served successfully as post armament officer and range officer, agent finance officer, commandant of flying cadets, supply officer of the Gulf Weather Station, flying instructor in the bombardment section, and his latest assignment is chief of section IV, the ACAFS. He holds aeronautical ratings of pilot and combat observer.

Airport—

Captain M. F. Clark of Houston is expected here this week or the first of next week to rate the ground school and inspect the field for the C. A. A., Mr. T. H. Coffelt announced.

Dean Gilchrist also stated that plans were still being considered for securing additional aviation equipment and perhaps lights and lighting equipment.

The new flying field is on a direct line between Barksdale Field, Shreveport, Louisiana, and Randolph and Kelly Fields at San Antonio, Texas, and as a result officers of the United States Army Air Corps are interested in the establishment of an adequate field in this community. The field can be used by the Army as an emergency landing field for long-distance flights between the two army posts and can also be used as the terminal for short cross-country flights from these ports.

There is some probability that the equipment on the field at Navasota may be available for the new field. This equipment is valued at approximately $40,000.

Students taking the C. A. A. ground course have described the course as "just like reading a novel" and say that it resembles other college courses only in that it is held in a school building.

Traveling Aggie—

they were well advanced in architecture.

Pompeii also had a MEN ONLY room. It was in one of the most elaborate homes and probably the private room of one of the rich old evilminded Romans. The walls were covered with paintings of couples in all the intimate poses of the boudoir art, which goes to show that those "just from Paris" magazines that float around in the U. S. A. weren't anything new. Also in this room was a fountain that at one time stood in the garden of one of these homes. It was a nude statue of a very virile young man—and I said it was a fountain, so turn your imagination loose. We believed it authentic because there was no extra charge for entrance to the room.

After leaving Pompeii we made the famous and beautiful Amalfi Drive, one of the finest coast drives—if not the finest—in Europe. The drive is along the mountainous coast of the Mediterranean between Vietri and Positano. As we weaved along the crooked mountain road the wide ravines and precipitous cliffs all but took our breath away. The rocky slopes were covered with grapevines, olive trees, lemon groves, and white houses. The deep blue of the Mediterranean a hundred feet below added to a scene of indescribable beauty. In places the houses were so thick on the mountain side that it appeared to be a mountain of houses.

We stopped at the Hotel Santa Caterina in Amalfi for lunch consisting mostly of spaghetti and red wine. We ate on the terrace overlooking the Mediterranean and were entertained by an Italian orchestra, mostly by the musician that contributed to the orchestration by giving a Bronx cheer into a large earthen jar.

A fountain in the center of the square of one of the small towns between Amifi and Naples attracted our attention. It was a statue of a buxom young lady holding a breast in each hand and a stream of water jetting forth from each. We arrived back at the ship in time for dinner and sailed just before dark. As we went out we passed near the Isle of Capri. And on to Africa. We landed at Alexandria Sept. 15, our sixteenth day from New York and were eager to leave our life of leisure and get our feet on solid ground again. We cleared customs in about two hours and caught a train for Cairo. We were in the Women beware! The Tiger, undergraduate newspaper at Clemson College, has thrown its full editorial weight into a movement to stop coeds from wasting the valuable time of Clemson men. Listen to this: "A good many girls have the mistaken idea that 'dates' are more appreciative of feminine charm if they are made to wait. The Tiger registers its protest. It will stand up for anyone who just leaves in disgust and lets that 'waiting' date wait."
