

Extension Service Urges "Live-at-home" Program for Farmers

The primary need of Texas farmers is larger farm income. This applies especially to cotton farmers.

Dairymen, producers of pork, wool, and mohair, truck and fruit growers and cattlemen are in relatively good shape. Not as good as they might be, but better than the cotton farmer.

The immediate outlook for the cotton producer is bluntly put by H. H. Williamson, director of the Texas A. & M. Extension Service, as "anything but encouraging."

"All of our foreign markets for cotton are rapidly being destroyed or nullified," he said. "Foreign demand will surely be even less by fall. The surplus will be tremendously increased, even under the restricted production program. No one knows how much cotton we may be able to sell, "If the price of cotton is low, the price of food-stuffs is relatively high. In the face of this situation, the farmer who makes his farm as nearly self-sustaining as possible will not only be doing himself a good turn but will do much to fit in with plans for national defense."

The Extension Service has stressed the "live-at-home" program for many years. Results from the state as a whole have been gratifying, but many individuals can still profit by adopting the production of food and feed for home use.

Other sections are turning to this program, as indicated by requests from Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, and a number of other states for details of the Texas plan.

Army in 1937 and was returned to active duty in July of this year.

Colonel Moore, who left College Station September 10, had been Commandant and P. M. S. & T. for the past three years. Following a month's leave of absence, Col. Moore will sail for Hawaii where he will begin his duties as Regimental and Harbor Defense Commander of the Separate Coast Artillery Brigade.

Asked for a statement about his leaving Colonel Moore said, "I have enjoyed my service here tremendously and regret that my services are to be terminated at this time. I am very appreciative of the cooperation I have had from the cadet corps during my duties here, and I know and hope that Colonel Watson will receive the same consideration."

Paul G. Haines, Bryan, was named Cadet Lieutenant Colonel and second in command of the corps. Other promotions to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, with command of their regiments, included: W. J. Montgomery, Mason, Infantry Regiment; J. P. Giles, Jr., Okmulgee, Okla., Field Artillery Regiment; T. B. Richey, San Antonio, Cavalry Regiment; L. L. Appelt, Paris, Engineer Regiment, and A. V. Hamilton, McKinney, Composite Regiment composed of the Signal Corps and Chemical Warfare Service Units. Other promotions will be announced later.

The full promotion list, as released to date, will be published in Thursday's Battalion.

44 Gridders Report To Morley Jennings

Heavy scrimmage work was in store for the Baylor Bears this week as Coach Morley Jennings began bearing down in preparation for the Bruins' opening tilt with North Texas State Teachers College in Waco Sept. 28.

The Baylor mentor has 44 gridders out for the fall training period this year and indications are that there will be some hotly contested battles for the starting places in the Bear lineup this fall.

Back for another year with the Bears are all 11 lettermen from the 1939 team which finished in a second place tie with S. M. U. in the loop standings. To work in with these seasoned veterans, the Baylor mentor will have 10 squadmen, four top ranking gridders who were held back with scholastic troubles last year and 19 sophomores who are given more than an even chance to work their way into the starting lineup.
