Indeed there are few words to describe the singing of this negro group, to whom singing is equivalent to emotional breathing. Abandoned gestures, subtle swaying, and an obvious joy in their song mark the performance of every piece. No other race delivers itself to rhythmic chant in so complete and pulsating way.
This group proves one thing, and that is that it takes negroes to sing negro spirituals. Only a negro group such as this can give an exhibition of naturalness, of exultation, and of the joy of expression of moods that we of our race prefer to keep concealed. The Fisk Singers are noted above all else for their interpretation of and presentation of the negro spirituals of which we are so proud.

Meteorites Is Subject Of Monnig Lecture

Oscar E. Monnig of Fort Worth will give a popular lecture on meteorites in the Geology Building, Thursday, Oct. 24, at 7:45 p. m. Mr. Monnig is leader of a group of amateur astronomers in Fort Worth known as the Texas Observers that has been active in tracing and collecting meteorites in the Southwest.
According to a recent article by Dr. Virgil E. Barnes of the Bureau of Economic Geology, Texas leads all other states in the Union in the number of falls that have been found with a number of 70. A large number of these falls are represented in the Texas Observers'

Friday night the 12 o'clock yell practice marked a turn to the worse. It was praised by a few as the best they've heard in two years and yet that doesn't say very much. Gathered around in their little groups were Aggies who had brought their dates out to see one of the traditional mid-night sessions. For the short time of its duration, they couldn't refrain from talking to the fairer ones. The result was that the chatter on the outside grew louder than that coming from the steps, even though at times the latter was much better.
Two years ago on the Y steps, Hub Aston raised the spirits of the Aggies so much that the scribes wrote the game story with the fight of the cadets more in the praises than the heavy defeat T.C. U. handed them.
We cried as the victory song came pouring over us and Hub paced the steps pleading and asking for the real spirit of the team, not for himself. The next day a great A.&M. team was turned back by the Frogs but the twelfth man had the real thing.
Last Saturday on Kyle Field, the corps filled the stand and let the game go as it would. The team was ready and yet the twelfth man was still unseasoned. Each class in its own section yelled when they saw fit and as they received the signals they let it go at that. The seniors high in the stands had little chance to give the personal yells for the names of the retiring players never traveled that far. Still, maybe at times that was for the better, for one player was given a yell on his entrance into the game and also on his leaving.
A reform must come about. Perhaps the new yell stand, if there is going to be one, will solve the problem. Baylor is a gunnin'; Arkansas has gone down twice and will be fighting for all she is worth. Rice has surprised a few and will slip up on a few more, and the stories of the Mustangs and the Longhorns have been repeated time and time again. The twelfth man must train also.
for C Battery. Since the Field team only had one man for the third match, they automatically forfeited it and the bunch from Dorm twelve took the match 2-1.
B Field Artillery seems to have a spark plug for their Class B football team. "Fish" Albert took things in hand and hustled out a win for the "buggy boys" over C Coast. Albert ran 25 yards to set up the score; played an all around good ball game by running 60 yards on an intercepted pass, 45 yards on a straight run, and climaxed it by passing for the touchdown. Score 6-0.
A four man team from M Infantry won two handball matches from A Engineers to win the game 2-1. Winning players were Roeseufeld, Renaud, Ballard, and Nayovitz.
Another four man team won for B Chemical Warfare when Fagin, Malone, Ponthieux, and Davis won their matches from F Infantry to cinch the game 2-1.
Headquarters Signal Corps won a well balanced basketball game from C Engineers 11-7. Both teams had the lucky number but from what one hears, you can't loose on eleven. Anglin made 4 points for the Engineers to claim high point honors. Noyes came in second with three talleys on the winning side.

collection. This collection numbers over 80 falls. The largest amount of material, 144 pieces, from the Toluca Mexico fall, totals 807 pounds.

Mr. Monnig will relate some of his experiences in obtaining specimens. A new find is the meteorite which fell two years ago at Kendleton, 50 miles southwest from Houston. This fall was observed by a number of persons on the A. & M. campus.
