work on the Longhorn when he was seriously injured on a hunting trip while home for the Christmas holidays. Ele, the one who has caught the brunt of the evil spirit's wrath, had to resign from school the first semester and was unable to return for the second. Therefore the Student Publications Committee had to look around for a third editor-in-chief of the Longhorn. Their choice was the managing editor, Morton Robinson.

To fill Morton's old position Lovell Kilpatrick was picked. Five days later the "ole spirit" struck again for it was only yesterday that Lovell was pronounced to have the measles by Dr. Marsh at the college hospital.

Now the entire Longhorn staff is threatening to go on strike, but Robinson is trying to hold them together by promising them a special Longhorn room at the hospital if they all catch the measles. Here's to the red spotted Longhorn of '41.

LSU, Sulfur Co. Representatives Hold Conference Here

Dr. Charles Upp, Clyde Ingram and O. E. Goff of Louisiana State University; Dr. P. D. Peterson and W. H. Mecom of the Freeport Sulphur Company, were in College Station Friday, Feb. 14, to confer with members of the Poultry Division of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station concerning poultry experiments being conducted by the Louisiana and Texas Experiment Stations on the use of sulphur in poultry rations.

Those representing the Poultry Division of the Texas Station were Ross M. Sherwood, J. R. Couch and L. E. James. The A. & M. college poultry department was represented at the conference by Prof. D. H. Reid, department head; Prof. E. D. Parnell, Morton Rosenberg and Alex Warren.

Following the conference visits were made to inspect the poultry equipment at the college poultry farm and the experiment station poultry laboratories.

Highway Economics Conference Will Be Held Here, February 24-28

Conference on Highway Economics will be held at College Station, February 24 through 28 by the School of Engineering in cooperation with the Highway Research Board of the Division of Engineering of the National Research Council. The conference is being held to enable highway administrators and engineers engaged in planning, building, and maintenance programs who have many problems based upon fundamental principles of economics.

Dean Gibb Gilchrist of the school of engineering and Roy W. Crum, director of the Highway Research Board, are to be co-directors of the conference.

Invitations have been extended to members of the Highway Departments of Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, and Texas, as well as to the members of the Public Roads Administration staffs of districts centered at Denver, Colorado, Kansas City, Missouri, Montgomery, Alabama, and Fort Worth, Texas.

This conference has been arranged as a result of a similar meeting held at Iowa State College last year at which the School of Engineering offered its services to the Highway Research Board to hold a conference for the Southwest.

Speakers at the conference from A. & M. include J. T. L. McNew, head of the department of civil engineering, J. Wheeler Barger, head of agricultural economics, T. A. Munson, professor of hydraulic engineering, S. R. Wright, assistant professor of municipal and sanitary engineering, F. C. Bolton, dean of the college, and Gibb Gilchrist, dean of the school of engineering.

Topics to be discussed are the Economic Setting of Highway Transportation, Marketing Factors, Financial Practices and Trends, Highway Cost Analysis, Fundamentals of Value and Depreciation, Distribution of Motor Vehicle Taxes among Classes of Vehicles, Development of Highway Transportation, and various other related subjects to the economics of highway transportation and construction.
