Annual Fireman's Training School To Be Held July 20

The annual Fireman's Training School will be held at Texas A. & M. College July 20-25, Dr. C. C. Hedges, head of the chemistry department at the college and director of the training school, has announced.

Since it was started the school has attracted firemen from all parts of Texas with the result that the improved methods of fire fighting learned have enabled the various city fire departments to reduce annual fire loss by many millions of dollars and at the same time earn their cities a reduction in the key fire insurance rates.

Last year over 600 firemen attended the course and earned the rate reduction for their cities by attending sectional instruction in all phases of fire fighting and then passing written examination on the work covered during the five-day training period.

Outstanding speakers on fire prevention and fire fighting will address the various classes and the instructors will be drawn from the training schools of the various large Texas cities.

Students placed by the University of Minnesota employment bureau in the last biennium earned a total of $410,542.99.

 ceremonies. This would allow the seniors the option of three uniforms for all occasions.

The commandant understood that all seniors were to have either light gray slacks or boots to be worn at drills and ceremonies. No senior would be able to wear O.D. slacks on formal occasions, and would therefore be required to purchase at least one pair of light gray slacks.

Under the uniform situation as it has been, seniors were not required to purchase any additional part of their uniform if they did not desire boots. Under the plan as understood by the commandant, a senior would be required to purchase at least one pair light gray slacks for drills and ceremonies. This added expenditure would work a hardship on some of the seniors by requiring the additional purchase and is therefore not acceptable.

The added saving of allowing seniors the optional uniforms by wearing O.D. serge slacks to drill and ceremonies would not justify the resulting confusion which such a situation would create, the commandant stated. The junior class may therefore decide which of the two plans as presented above they desire for next year.

The entire situation concerning the uniform was presented by the commandant to a meeting of the sophomore and junior classes Tuesday afternoon. In the interests of economy and practicability, the commandant recommended that senior boots be eliminated from the uniform because they are no longer regulation in the army.

As a result of that meeting, the two classes met again Thursday to make their decisions on the uniform. The junior class voted solidly to wear boots in some way with their uniform next year.

At the meeting of the two classes accepted by a vote of 291 to 511 the second uniform plan as understood by the committee and presented to them. Since this plan was incorrect and impossible, it is necessary that the junior class

Preference to Be Given to Seniors

Seniors will be given first preference in selection of students to speak before their local high schools, Cadet Colonel W. A. Becker announced yesterday. Further preference will go to students with the highest scholastic records followed by those with the best activity records, Becker also disclosed.

These preferences will take effect only in case of more than one request for the same school.

Students desiring to speak before their high schools are reminded that all requests must be in by noon Monday.

Those selected will be given excused absences for May 2 and 3 or for May 5 and 6. Students visiting high schools more than 250 miles away will be allowed an extra day for traveling.

The selection of the students is being handled by the Corps Staff juniors and the completed request cards from each regiment should be turned in to them. They are Tom Gillis, W. M. Pena, Warren Ringgold, Lee Rice, George Summerville, Howard Blessington and Jabus Barker.

Campus Distractions—

 er compelling force behind it; it preaches war and it preaches a moral. Many newsreel shots of the actual occurrences of the era 1916-1920 are included and give it the atmosphere of the hallowed past. It is worth going just for curiosity as the film that has been so widely publicized, but it is also well worth seeing, because it didn't receive such publicity for nothing.

In a much lighter vein than the thought-provoking film mentioned above, "COMRADE X" is a screw-loose show if there ever was one. It has Hedy Lamarr as a Russian communistic street car conductor with a male name, just so she can hold the job. Even as a street car conductor though, she has a face that would make anyone take notice. Her figure, which she reveals this time more than in any of her previous pictures, is only meet again to make final decisions on the uniform.

The classes also voted that some form of raincoat would be regulation for next year, the color and type to be decided later. Overseas caps to be worn with the dress uniform were decisively rejected. The classes voted that the regulation army windproof and waterproof jacket be made regulation for the corps. Upperclassmen will be permitted to wear their present leather or other jackets until worn out, but the army jacket will be regulation for freshmen next year.

Aggies, Bear—

 ning. Scoggin and Jeffrey opened the inning with walks. Buchanan sacrificed, but was safe when Haley threw the ball away. Scoggin scored on the error. Peden then singled sharply to center to score Jeffrey and Buchanan. Bumpers sacrificed, and Rothe followed with a safety to score Peden. Lindsey hit into a double play to end the inning.

They added four more tallies in the sixth inning. Jeffrey doubled to left. Buchanan singled to right and went on to second as Casey held on to the ball. Jeffrey was safe at the plate on Peden's grounder. Buchanan was out in a chase as Bumpers grounded out. Rothe got a bunt single to score Peden. Lindsey was purposely passed to fill the bases, and Francis singled to short to score Bumpers. Pugh's long fly accounted for the fourth run of the inning, with Rothe coming in after the catch.

The cadets added their final run in the eighth on a walk, a hit, and an error.

Rothe and Jeffrey led the Aggie attack with two hits apiece, while as shapely as one who would expect from the fact that it has been so carefully hidden in her previous films.

Clark Gable is the foreign correspondent in Russia who has been sneaking secret reports past the censors. Some of the dumbest things happen before he is caught. One thing to notice in this show is the easy methods of divorce used in Russia. It is really quite convenient.

There isn't a bit of sense in this show. The characters are looney and they act it that way.

Cole on Campus to Interview ME Grads

C. Wilson Cole, the employment supervisor of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation of Patterson, New Jersey, was on the campus Friday to interview all seniors majoring in mechanical engineering. Mr. Cole has been interviewing college students since January first of this year. During that time he has interviewed more than half of his assignment of sixty-two colleges and universities. He arrived on the campus Thursday night from Texas University and will probably be here over the weekend.

Miller and Casey accounted for the only safeties off Bumpers and Henderson.
