president; Mrs. Dona Carnes, local program chairman; and Mrs. Lee J. Rountree, managing editor of the Bryan Daily Eagle.

The closing session of the convention is to be held this morning in the Baptist church auditorium for the election of officers for the ensuing year. Mrs. Dona Carnes will give a breakfast for the association members at her home and at noon those attending will be the guests of the Bryan Lions club. The Women's clubs of Bryan and College Station entertained the newspaper women at a tea Sunday afternoon.

Awards for literary merit are to be given at this morning's session for the best book published during the year, best editorial, best short story, best feature story, best one-act play, best poem, and best 2000 word article of Texas Legends or historical events.

At their sessions the members of the association were entertained by the a capella choir from Stephen F. Austin High School in Bryan directed by Euell Porter, musical selections by Miss Lynette Barbee, Wharton, and a program presented by the guest artists of Baylor University.

"The Modern Magazine" was the title of an address made by Miss Madeline McBurnett, a past president of the association and permanent chairman of the Loan Scholarship Fund. Miss Lucile Nemir of Navasota told of "The Part Texas Women's Press Association Had in Restoring the School of Journalism at the University of Texas, and Our Scholarship Work." Three minute talks on different phases of a newspaper woman's work and their value to the public were presented by members of the association.
