Cattlemen and Barnyard Frolicers Have Big Time Dancing Friday Night

By Allen Madeley
Gay clothes, hot music, and good dancing was the social order of things Friday night. At Sbis the gaily-dressed members of the Saddle and Sirlon Club and the Kream and Kow Klub swung out with their University of Texas Glee Club dates. Danceable rhythms were furnished by Ed Gerlach and his orchestra.

Preceding the Cattlemen's Ball, the Saddle and Sirlon Club presented the Texas University Girl's Glee Club in a program at the Aggeland Inn at 6:30 p. m.

At intermission medals were presented to the members of the senior livestock judging team and to the members of the senior dairy cattle judging team. Those receiving livestock judging medals were: M. B. Callihan, R. T. Foster, L. J. Gentry, J. T. Rice and L. F. Brander.

Dairy judging medals were presented to B. B. Fowler, J. K. Adams, C. F. Baird, and N. B. Yarling.

Up in the Agricultural Engineering Building hayloft the A.S. A.E. held their Sixth Annual Barnyard Frolic. Brogans, straw hats, and coveralls took the place of tuxedos and Number 1's. Further atmosphere was lent by hay and farm implements which surrounded the dance floor. Ed Minnock and the Aggeland orchestra provided the music for the jiggin' and jivin'.

Annual Profs Banquet Set for Wednesday, April 23

This affair climaxes the year of activities of the local chapter. The banquet is open to all members of the college staff and other residents of Bryan and College.

Each year an outstanding educator and speaker is brought to the campus for this occasion. The speaker for this year will be Dr. Robert L. Sutherland, Director of the Hogg Foundation, Austin. Musical entertainment at the banquet will feature Mrs. W. G. Huey with piano selections and Mrs. C. H. Groneman with violin numbers.

Dr. Sutherland will talk on the subject "Unorthodox Educational Opportunities in Texas, which should be of interest to a large group of local people. Tickets for the banquet are now on sale by a number of the members of the Association.

Chevalier—

large attendance is expected because of the close contact of Chevalier with current events.

The dates for the other lectures have not been set. The first lecture called "America Weighs In" is a study of what National Defense means to American engineering. The other two talks are "Engineer and His Job", a glimpse of conditions under which the modern engineer must work, and "Engineer and His Neighbor", showing some thoughts on the human side of engineering practice.

Facilities for instruction, stables, indoor range, outdoor range, supply room, motor shed, class rooms, drill fields, armory and other equipment will also be inspected.

A review for the inspecting officers will be given by the corps Thursday afternoon.

Air Corps Wants 10 Percent of A&M Military Graduates as Pilots

Approximately fifty A. & M. seniors who are graduating in June with the reserve officers commissions will be able to transfer to the Air Corps Reserve as second lieutenants according to a letter received by the Commandant's Office from the War Department.

The Air Corps is in need of officers for duties in connection with supply procurement and is particularly interested in those graduates who have majored in aeronautical engineering, mechanical engineering and business administration.

The students who have already received their commissions or are planning to receive commissions may, upon acceptance, apply for transfer to the Air Corps Reserve. These applications must have the recommendation of the student's senior instructor and will be accepted between May 1 and May 15. With approval of the Chief of the Air Corps these students will be transferred to the Air Corps Reserve as second lieutenants without certificates of capacity.

All applications must give the student's name and arm of service, the course in which his degree is to be awarded, his major and minor subjects and have the recommendation of his senior instructor.

The following are excerpts from the War Department's letter to the Commandant's Office: "Corps Area and Department Commanders are authorized to

Profs Take Civil Service Exams With Pupils

Students and professors were on equal terms at examination time when seven members of the staff of the Department of Agronomy took the Civil Service examinations for Junior Professional Assistant along with the seniors majoring in agronomy given in Bryan last month.

Since a great many students taking agronomy courses are interested in qualifying for governmental positions under the Civil Service, much emphasis is placed on training students for this examination.

The Department of Agronomy is charged with supervising this Civil Service work and training men for certain of these examinations dealing with the various phases of agronomy. Therefore, it seemed quite natural that the staff of the Department of Agronomy should keep in touch with these examinations and take as many as possible.

First, if the staff members actually take the examinations they are much better prepared to give students in their classes the type of training that these examinations call for. Second, there is an occasional opportunity for the professors to improve their positions by actually taking appointments under the Civil Service in some of the professional positions.

It is regarded as even more valuable to have staff members hold such technical positions for a year, after which they come back and resume their teaching with a much more varied background and a wealth of experience.

For a number of years Texas A. & M. has rated high in the total number of men who have qualified for this type of employment.

Leadership Course—

Benson, who helped establish 4-H Club work in the United States, will give intensive instruction to persons interested in rural youth groups such as 4-H Clubs, Future Farmer chapters, rural Boy Scout troops and F.S.A. groups. Mr. Benson is now national director of rural scouting for the Boy Scouts of America.

The other instructor obtained for the school is V. K. Brown, director of the playgrounds of the Chicago Park Board. Mr. Brown will give attention to recreational problems and leisure time activities for employed and unemployed youth. Teachers and recreational workers for governmental and private organizations such as the NYA, WPA, YMCA, and YWCA, are expected to be particularly interested in the June 23-28 program.

Morning periods will be devoted to lectures, and the afternoons will be spent in demonstrations, round tables, and field trips. Persons interested in obtaining college credit for the course may do so under certain conditions, according to Mr. Russell.
