With Hub Johnson

It's the University of Texas again. On Clark Field tomorrow afternoon Marty Karow's gang will put all their best into nine innings of ball that will tell a lot as to who will take the bunting this year.

The Longhorns have fallen once and this was in Dallas to the Mustangs. Then they retaliated with two overwhelming wins over the Ponies.

So far this year the Aggies have had bad luck with the University. In 57 seconds, remember, they went down to the highly inspired Steers in football. On the cross country route, the Texas team came out number one. In basketball, the Aggies were half-and-half but failed to scratch over the Longhorns.

Swimming time rolled around and Adamson's men won seven of the ten first places but still lost by seven points.

Last week, however, the golf team issued their warning to the Texas crew with a tie, 3 to 3.

Before departing for Des Moines, Iowa, Coach Dough Rollins stated that Pete Watkins would enter the high jump only and leave the hurdles to Fred Wolcott.

This allows Watkins to concentrate on the one event.

Dub Walters of Baylor will be the only other southwest threat in the event.

Baseballers Face Crucial Test Tomorrow With TCU

Tilt Will Go Far In Deciding Results On Conference Race

Even though inclement weather has kept Coach Marty Karow's Aggie nine inactive for the past week, it has given them the needed rest they desire to prepare them for their crucial test against the league-leading Texas Longhorns in Austin tomorrow afternoon. This tilt is due to go far in telling the outcome of the Southwest Conference race.

The Longhorns disposed of a formidable foe last week when they let loose a barrage to bury Brooks Atchison and the S. M. U. Mustangs in a two game series. Atchison was the same hurler who plastered the only defeat on the Steers' record.

After a bad start in which he was pounded hard by his foes, Melvin Deutsch has finally regained his old form. He has been the star Texas hurler for the past two years, and is expected to be in top shape for tomorrow's game. However, should he falter again, Coach Bibb Falk has Udell Moore ready for relief work. Moore, who is the son of the famous pitching ace, Wiley Moore, has done the major portion of this year's twirling, both in relief work and nine-inning stints. Pete Layden, the gridster who proved the Aggies' Waterloo last Thanksgiving, is expected to carry on the heavy hitting for the Steers while Jack Stone and Leslie Croucher are slated to shine afield.

Meanwhile Coach Marty Karow and his diamondneers are sharpening their weapons in preparation for the Texas juggernaut. The Aggies were slightly off in their series with Rice in which they were handed their second defeat of the current season. However, the team will attempt to iron out their miscues and are slated to be a formidable hurdle in the Longhorn quest for their twenty-second conference title.

Karow is planning to send Lefty Bumpers, his ace twirler, to face the potent Steers. Bumpers wilted in his last two times out, but is expected to get the needed rest to be in top shape for the Texas game. If anything goes wrong, Roy Peden will stand by for relief work. His relief hurling in the Rice game was a major factor in the Aggies' victory.

The conference race is shapping up in the same state as it was last year. Texas is the top team as in the previous campaign with six wins and one loss. The Aggies and the Baylor Bears are still fighting it out for second place just as they did last year. A defeat of Texas by the Aggies will muddle up the conference into a three-way tie in which anything can happen, while a Longhorn victory will set them that much closer to the title.

Drawings for Inter-League Play-Offs In Volleyball Will Soon Be Under Way

Most all of the Volleyball league championships have been decided and drawings for places in the finals are on the way. Many good teams have reached the final play-offs and promise competition aplenty before the college champion is crowned.

A Chemical Warfare beat I Field Artillery 2-0 to cinch their league. The two matches ended 15-7 and 15-2. Another team that came in to the final play by winning their league is G Coast Artillery by virtue of a 2-0 win over D Field Artillery. An easy 15-1 match found the going tougher in the second go-round and it was only after a 16-14 score had been reached that the game was settled.

They combined to swim all of the events.

Many swimming teams are losing points by having their backstrokers disqualified. A check-up with coach Adamson or one of his assistants, on the proper kick in this event, might mean the difference between the loss or a win in a meet.

An Aggieintmon demonstration game will be held in DeWare Field House tonight at 7:30 for the benefit of those who wish to become better acquainted with the sport. Credit for one game will be given all men in attendance who are taking intramurals for physical education.

E Engineers, fifth place contestants in last year's swim meet, is a definite threat in the current contest. They accumulated a total of 35 points to the six of D Infantry in a meet Tuesday.

Class B Handball quarter-finals are over and four teams have advanced to the semi-final stage. I Infantry's win over 1st Headquarters Field Artillery kept the spectators on their feet until the last ball was played. With one match to the credit of each team, Slover and Eskridge, I Inf., were tied up with Hightower and Carasco in the final and deciding match of the game. I Infantry came out on top 24-22 and advanced to the semi-finals on their 2-1 win.

Brusse, Parsons, and Pealor took care of three ping pong matches to win a 3-2 match for F Infantry at the expense of Machine Gun Cavalry. Crayton and Delameter accounted for the loser's wins.

Anderson Takes Golfers to Play SMU in Dallas

Coach Frank Anderson and the Texas Aggie golf team left the A. & M. campus yesterday afternoon to journey to Dallas where they will take on the highly touted S.M.U. Mustangs this afternoon in one of the few exhibition tilts remaining on the cadet schedule before the Southwest Conference Meet comes off in Austin May 9 and 10.

Captain Henry Hauser, Henry Richards, Bob Wayne and Johnny Roberts are the linksmen who made the trip to Dallas. They form the nucleus of the Aggie golf team that has been more or less successful this season. Coming off with fourth place in the Fort Worth Exposition Meet, the golfers have since then added Rice, Texas Tech, and Baylor to their victory list and tied the University of Texas.

Bright stars in the Aggie victorious march have been Hauser and Richards, both of whom are well-trained linksmen. Hauser has been the leading Aggie golfer for the past two years, while Richards has been one of the leading putt and approach men in the conference. Warne and Roberts, the other two golfers, have been coming along nicely, and could well serve a threat in the conference meet. Warne was a squadsman last year, while this is Roberts' first initial appearance on the team. He has shown fine promise so far, and according to Coach Anderson, should set the conference afire by his senior year.

Following the S.M.U. match, the Aggies move over to Fort Worth tomorrow afternoon to take on the potent Texas Wesleyan team.

From the looks of present records, it seems that E Field Artillery, last year's swimming champions, are out to repeat this year. Their latest victory was a 33-11 win over 3rd Headquarters Field Artillery.

A five man team from E Infantry belongs in the ranks of the high scorers. 30-9 was the score of their meet with B Engineers when Zerr, Pankey, Huffman, Barth, and Yan-

This weather may be doing the farmers a great deal of good but it certainly has kept the Aggie athletics at a standstill. All baseball games in the past week have been postponed, while only indoor intramural activities have been kept going.

The Aggie Fish-Baylor Club game was left hanging in the air due to bad weather, while the Aggie-Baylor varsity game hit the skids for a similar reason. The latter tilt was moved up from Thursday to Tuesday only to see the game washed out. Yesterday afternoon, the Aggie Fish suffered their second consecutive postponement in their game with the Allen Academy Ramblers. All these tilts will be put off indefinitely.

Avast There, Ya Lubbers; Sailing Regatta Set May 3

"Ready about! Hard a' lee!" Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

You say no such thing has been done before?

You're right! But some of the old salts that form the nucleus of the club say that membership in the I.C.Y.R.A. will enable them to leave their wakes across more rivers, lakes, harbors and bays than you can count on two hands!

One of the prime requisites for membership in the I.C.Y.R.A. is the training of land lubbers to be sailors and sailors to be sportsmen. If you are interested in sailing—and not afraid of getting wet—if you are a landlubber, old salt, or just in between, steer a course to room 319 Academic Building tomorrow night at seven fifteen, half way between the look out's six and seven bells, and find out what it is like to be in an organization that is sailing full and hard, not luffing a bit.
