Aggie Yell Section, Besides Being Largest In the World, Is Important Part of Team

While the Aggie football squad worked out with vim and vigor on Kyle Field, another fall training season became a reality Thursday night when the famous Aggie "12th man," some 6,500 strong, started drilling for the coming season. Never has such spirit arisen as was the case Thursday. Led by Chief Yell Leader Skeen Staley and his assistant, J. O. Alexander, plus the able guidance of the Junior Yell Leaders Jack Nagle and Chuck Chalmers, the corps proved that it is just as ready for the coming season as is the cadet gridiron team.

No one really knows the importance of the "12th man" more than the football team itself. The support that they get, the assurance that they have that all is well, win or lose, certainly tends to build up the morale of a team, and often has been the cause of quite a number of victories. There is nowhere to be found anything that even comes close to the Aggie yell section. While other schools have only meager attendance to support the football team at unimportant Galley 8 games, Coach Homer Norton's Aggies can always be assured of at least 6,500 cadets to yell at the top of their voices for the team.

Southwest Conference Teams Depend Upon Key Men For Offense; Injuries May Hurt

As the opening of the Southwest Conference race is only just around the corner, a noticeable factor has arisen among every team in the conference. That is, each team depends on one or a combination of key men. The Aggies have Moser on whom they cast all their hopes. Texas University has Layden and Crain; Rice has Brumley and Dwelle, T. C. U. has Gillespie, S. M. U. has Johnson, and Baylor has Russell and Wilson. Should anything go wrong with these men, either by injury or other unforeseen circumstance, the team would suffer enough to be classed as just an

Many Gridsters Show Great Form In Practice Session

Wayne Cure and Bob Tulis Among Gridsters Looking Especially Good in Drills

Only a week has passed since the Texas Aggie varsity squad began fall training for the oncoming football season. The team is beginning to shape up with a number of the boys showing up quite well in the early practice sessions. Punting, passing, and line-drills have been the major items thus far with only a few light scrimmages taking place. The sophomores on the squad are putting out and show possibilities of being able replacements for a number of the stars lost by graduation.

Jake Webster, an able place-kicker, is showing uncanny skill in placing the pigskin between the uprights. Webster should be able to provide the Aggies a place-kicker with the skill of Marion Pugh.

Derace Moser, Tom Pickett, Jake Webster, and Leo Daniels have been getting off some long kicks in punting practice.

The pass chunkers and receivers have been getting in some smooth practice and a majority of the passes have been clicking. Moser and Webster have been throwing most of the passes.

The ends have been doing a nice job in pass-receiving. "Jitterbug" Henderson, Jim Sterling, and Harold Cowley have been snagging the balls with deadly accuracy.

Euel Wesson, probable starting tackle, has a worthy understudy in the person of Bob Tulis who has been doing some great work under fire.

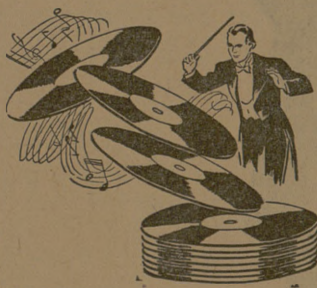

Wayne Cure, a junior college transfer, who is out for a guard berth has been showing lots of hustle on the practice field, and giving the first string guards plenty of competition.

ordinary team. For example, if both Layden and Crain were injured, the Longhorns would lose all their offensive effect, and be nothing but an ordinary team. The same can be said for the rest. So before picking Texas, S. M. U., Rice, or the Aggies for the crown, one should always consider these frivolities as a vital point in any setup.

SPORT SQUIBS FROM HERE AND THERE

Bob (Bloody) Tulis, big husky tackle, and Wayne Cure, former All-Conference Junior College guard, are really going great guns at practice, and are giving the other linemen plenty of competition. . . . DIDJA KNOW . . . that this year the Texas Aggies will play their first Saturday night football game in Texas when they meet the Texas A. & I. Javelinas in the Alamo Stadium at San Antonio, Saturday, October 4. . . that Reveille, the Texas Aggie black and white cur mascot is the only female registered in the college.

INTRAMURALS

By DUB OXFORD

The hustle and bustle of registration has everybody in a dither and so far as the intramural activities go, intramurals are very bare right now. But things will begin to pick up soon. E Battery Field Artillery will be defending their class A championship crown this next year and according to the latest dope they are hard hit by the reorganization of their battery. And by the token, E Battery freshmen will be a very determined bunch of players this year. They too, won their class and will have a pretty hard time keeping all other hands off the fish flag.

Departmental Managers Meeting
All of last year's freshman unit intramural managers, or any other sophomores interested in becoming sophomore departmental managers, please come by the intramural office. A distinction will be made in the naming of the managers, unit managers being members of their respective organizations while departmental managers will work strictly out of the intramural office. Incidentally it proposed that each organization is to have an athletic and recreation officer instead of the previous organization manager. This will give the cadet officers a chance to better learn how to exercise their duties.

Every student who has enrolled in P. E. 101, whether taking class, intramural, or out for a major or minor sport to receive credit for P. E., is to report to the Assembly Hall for their first classes.

Here are the winners of class A and class B intramural sports last year. This will let you know the teams that were top on the campus in intramurals:
Class A Winner — Basketball, M Infantry; handball, B Field Artillery; cross country, F Engineers; rifle, E Headquarters Field; tennis, B - C.W.S.; touch football, Headquarters; Water polo, E Field Artillery; speedball, 5 C.H.Q.; volleyball, F Engineers; horseshoes, Headquarters Cavalry; boxing, E Coast Artillery; wrestling, G Field Artillery; softball, A Engineers; swimming, E Field Artillery; ping pong, 3 C.H.Q.; track, F Artillery.

Class B winner—basketball, K Infantry; handball, B Field Artillery; cross country, B Engineers; touch football, F Field Artillery; water polo, B Coast Artillery; volleyball, B Field Artillery; horseshoes, E Field Artillery; boxing, E Coast Artillery; wrestling, I Field Artillery; softball, B Infantry; swimming, H Coast Artillery; ping pong, A - C.W.S. track, E Field Artillery.

Following the ring ceremony, Kimbrough returned to the sound stage and Miss Golding hurried preparations to return to her alma mater, Marymount College, Tarrytown, New York.

Quoth Kimbrough: "I would have done this in private, but I had just bought the ring and it was burning a hole in my pocket."

Quoth Golding: "The wedding will probably be some time after Christmas."

Following the ring ceremony, Kimbrough returned to the sound stage and Miss Golding hurried preparations to return to her alma mater, Marymount College, Tarrytown, New York.

Can't Beat 'Em
And College Night proved it! Aggies are doing things bigger and better than ever this year. With Skeen, J. O., Jack, and Chuck in the driver's seat, A. & M. was away to a flying start Thursday night with an initial yell practice that rocked the Aggie land acoustics. Certainly A. & M. is big. For the first time in the history of the College Night tradition, freshmen were lined from the rear of the band all around the block of the YMCA until the tail-end of the fish line touched the leading squad of the marching Aggie band.

Freshmen Practice Opens With 76 Fish Reporting Out

Seventy-six husky and powerful Fish answered the call of Coach Manning Smith and Coach Charlie Deware for freshmen football players Thursday afternoon. In fact, so many boys answered the call that it was necessary to ask that some of them wait until next week to start actual drill. The group was so large that the number of suits available was not sufficient to care for the demand.

The ends under Coach Smith went through a few plays and practiced signal calling.

The first afternoon was spent mostly in covering the main fundamentals of the game and then putting them into use. After a few setting up exercises, the boys went through some passing drills and then followed this with some blocking practice. The quarterbacks and

The entire squad showed plenty of enthusiasm and lots of that good old Aggie fight spirit as they went through each of their assigned duties. There was a constant chatter and talk on that field all Thursday afternoon and it all indicated but one thing—those boys are ready to give their all for the Maroon and White of Aggie land. With the backing of the cadet corps those boys will comprise a team that will be worth while to watch.

There were sentries on duty on the A. & M. campus in 1908.
