Ruby and Wesson, tackles; Richardson and Roy Bucek, guards; and Sibley, center. Maples will be on hand to replace Richardson in the event the latter's knee injury is still evident.

The reserves will be: Tullis, Dickey, and Motley, tackles; Mulholland, Bucek, and Cure, guards; and Holder, Mercer, and "Cotton" Williams, centers.

The New York University squad is built around twenty lettermen, outstanding of which are two backfield men, Vinnie Finn and Len Bates, the great colored back.

DISTRACTIONS

will like "Music In My Heart"; if not, then you will have a taste for that sort of thing.

At a time when the world is filled with hate and animosity for our brother man, the motion picture lords have seen fit to produce "MEET JOHN DOE." This is a story just running over with brotherly love and kindness.

Gary Cooper is a down-and-out baseball pitcher who happens to be "John Doe" in a publicity stunt sponsored by a big-city daily paper. Barbara Stanwyck is the columnist on the paper who originated the idea.

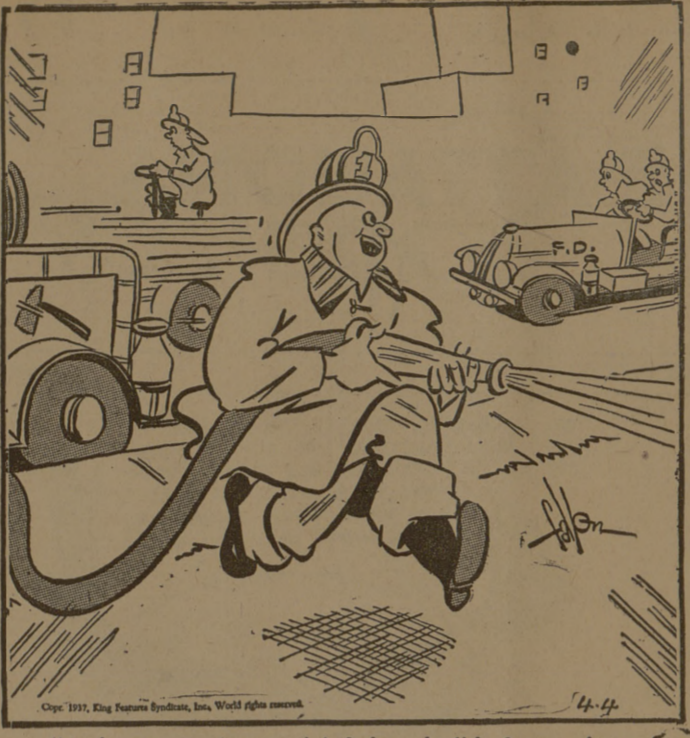

Cooper is bumming around the country living from hand to mouth when he is chosen for the job of "John Doe." He is immediately catacaulted in the limelight as the man who spreads brotherly love. He makes speeches and organizes "John Doe" clubs all over the country. His adventures and misfortunes are acted with a genuineness that is touching.

WPA Libraries Contribute Material To All Army Camps Throughout Texas

Reading matter for Uncle Sam's soldiers and defense industry workers in Texas localities is enroute to principal military and industrial areas in the form of 4,500 WPA-bought volumes, it was announced by Arthur R. Curry, state director of the WPA library project.

Although principal shipments are going to off-campsite army recreation centers at Brownwood, Galveston, Abilene, and Mineral Wells, many of the volumes will supplement reading facilities in other parts of Texas, Curry reported.

Currently employed in defense areas to increase library services where large groups of defense industry workers and their families are gathered and in the vicinity of expanding military establishments are 360 WPA library workers. To serve the areas in the eastern section of Texas, WPA library employes are stationed at

Ventilating Engineer Discusses Problems While on Visit Here

John James, technical secretary of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, visited the campus Sunday. He discussed with college authorities projects of interest to heating and ventilating engineers.

After luncheon at the Aggeliand Inn with J. S. Hopper, W. E. Long, and W. I. Treutner of the mechanical engineering department, S. S. Share and E. G. Smith of the physics department, and Jack Keeling of the electrical engineering department, James discussed the various projects now in progress on the campus.

These included a bulletin on intermittent heating and cooling that will be published in the near future by the Engineering Experiment Station; the inspection of equipment for measuring fluid friction in pipes sponsored by the engineering experiment station and the ASHVE in the mechanical engineering shops; the inspection of a nearly completed air-conditioned research room also in the mechanical engineering department; and a discussion of an analysis of some heat flow problems that are being performed by the physics department.

Cornell will have to live up to its high ratings to defeat Harvard. Mississippi State should beat L. S. U. and the same goes for Minnesota over Illinois, Fordham over North Carolina, Tulane over Rice, and Penn over Yale.

Princeton will take Columbia by a shade and other close games will be V. P. I. over William & Mary, Southwestern of Memphis over Centre, and North Carolina State over Furman.

The Williamson predictions for Saturday and Sunday follow. Probable winners are listed in capitals:
